13 MILLION TONS OF YOUR COAL SENT TO CANADA

HERE'S A FISTFULL OF HARD coal. It came from the cellar of Fuel Administrator James J. Phelan. He has fuel to burn. In the center is the luxurious Brookline home of the Fuel Administrator, and, below, the administrator himself and a part of the buckwheat coal heaped in his cellar and photographed there by the Boston American.

Is your furnace suffering from mal-nutrition? Here are a few statistics for you, as long as statistics seem to be the thing. Try 'em on your furnace. Maybe they'll warm you up. They may even make you hot.

During 1922 there were 13,448,299 tons of coal shipped from the United States to Canada.

Of this vast quantity of coal, 11,083,112 were bituminous and 2,365,187 were anthracite. In five months alone—from September 15, 1922, to January 20, 1923—985,000 tons of anthracite, which might have solved New England's fuel shortage—went across the border.

During the first fifteen days of January, 110,000 tons of anthracite were shipped from the United States to Canada.

These statistics come from F. R. Wadleigh, federal fuel distributor at Washington.

Thousands of tons of coal are still being sent to Canada. Mr. Wadleigh says so.

On top of this, James J. Phelan admits there's a coal emergency!

The Boston American failed to convince the State Fuel Administrator. Mr. Phelan probably will not believe it when he is informed by this newspaper that it has found 150,000 tons more of anthracite coal which should be in the bins of New England householders.

But Mr. Phelan has in some manner come to a realization of the coal shortage. Today he not only admits an emergency exists, but has shot out special wires to the presidents of the New Haven, B. & M. and the B. & A. railroads, the burden of which is S. O. S.

Mr. Phelan begs the roads to put on some steam and get some coal here.

Here is his message to the presidents of the New Haven, the B. & A. and the B. & M.:

"Will you and your officials make one strenuous drive over a period of the next two or three weeks, beginning immediately, so that all anthra-

More of your coal.

The American has discovered it—in Phelan's cellar.

James J. Phelan, State Fuel Administrator, says there's nothing to worry about in the matter of a coal shortage.

So far the only fuel he has administered has been, largely, hot air.

He offers what he calls "cold statistics," but statistics won't burn.

Stove, buckwheat, pea and egg,
Will make Jack Frost sit up and beg.

There is no doubt at all that Mr. Phelan is personally quite comfortable. As State Fuel Administrator he has administered to himself ample coal to heat his handsome and commodious residence at No. 11 Chiswick road, Brighton. Several tons of it are laid by. Even Mr. Phelan doesn't like to take chances on the railroads. When he buttons up his sleek, warm fur coat and steps into his heated limousine each morning he doesn't have to worry over whether the folks at home will be comfortable.

And the Fuel Administrator is not content with just one kind of coal. There are four varieties in his opulent bins. There is stove coal, pea coal, buckwheat coal and egg coal.

The Phelan coal is not only plenteous, but of the highest

CONVICT FREED TO CARE FOR STALLION

Madison, Wis., Feb. 8.—Governor J. J. Blaine today pardoned Edward Ehman, serving a year in jail for violation of the State prohibition laws, in order that he might return to his farm and care for his thoroughbred stallion, which has not been out of the barn since September 19.

ROMEO AND BABY DOLL GUILTY

Sentenced to Six Months Each on Charge of Misconduct; Both Appeal

Eleanor "Baby Doll" Baker and John T. McGovern, former "Romeo" patrolman of the City Hall Avenue Station, today were found guilty of misconduct in Municipal Court and sentenced to six months each.

Chief Justice Bolster heard the case one week ago, but gave a continuance of one week to decide upon two motions of Attorney P. Edward Fardy for the defence. The judge announced at the opening of court today that he would deny both motions. He then passed sentence.

Attorney Fardy gave notice of an appeal for both defendants.

Reported plans to seek pardon for Harry G. Baker, husband of "Baby Doll," now serving a life term for murder of Dwight Chapman, the Westboro hermit, caused speculation today whether Baker seeks to turn the burden of guilt on any other person.

It is reported Baker has denied to Sheriff Albert Richardson of Worcester County that it was he who killed Chapman.

At the time of the trial "Baby Doll" was found guilty of being an accessory after the murder. She served part of a year's sentence in Worcester County House of Correction.

TRAIN AHEAD OF TIME; THANKS NEW HAVEN

Postcard to the Railroad Bureau of the Boston American explains its own excitement:

"Wonders will never cease to an end. Just came up from Middlebro on the 3 p. m. (Tuesday) and what do you think happened? It got in three minutes early. Ges. I can't get over it. Please thank the N. Y., N. H. & H. with a whole front page. Due at 3:35 p. m., arrived 3:32; track 26; engine 826. And if you don't believe it all I know you can't—ask them. "Middleboro. M. J. FRANK."

GIRL AUTO THIEF IS GUILTY

Daughter of Ex-Cambridge Policeman Held With Youth on Serious Charges

Elizabeth Murphy, seventeen-year-old daughter of former Special Officer Timothy Murphy of Cambridge, sat in the prisoner's dock in Cambridge court today and calmly pleaded guilty to the larceny of an automobile.

Elizabeth was arrested with William J. McDonald, twenty-one, at the latter's home, North Harvard street, Brighton. She appeared in court wearing knickerbockers. She tossed her bobbed head nonchalantly when questioned by Judge Stone.

Both cases were postponed at request of Inspectors Coady and Powers. It is understood the young couple will be taken to Lancaster to face charges of robbery with a gun.

Two years ago Elizabeth was arrested as a stubborn child and sent to the Lancaster school for girls. She was released last November.

The night of December 1, it is alleged that Elizabeth and McDonald stole a machine from in front of Beauty Hall, Cambridge.

They started on a ride to Lancaster, but the gasoline gave out on the way. McDonald is said to have telephoned a Lancaster garage for a supply. When a man came with the gasoline it is alleged McDonald put a gun to his head and told him to "beat it."

The automobile broke down in Lancaster and was abandoned. Elizabeth asked the driver of a bakery wagon for a lift and he obliged.

As the pair got into the wagon, McDonald, it is charged, put a gun to the driver's head, struck him down, and took between $50 and $75 in cash.

Elizabeth is the oldest child of a large family. She lives with her parents on Foch street, North Cambridge.

BOY'S 4 FINGERS GONE; FIRM FINED

The Boston Pottery Company of East Boston was fined $50 in East Boston Court today for allowing a boy under the age of sixteen to operate heavy machinery driven by power.

Angelo Municheli of No. 3 Lexington place is the boy. Angelo lost four fingers while working at a grinding machine in the pottery company's plant December 29.

John R. Dexter of the State Board told the court Angelo had been working in the kiln room. December 29 a man was needed in the grinding room. A foreman took Angelo from the kiln room and put him to work. A few minutes later Angelo's hand was caught in the machinery.

DENTIST SETTLES ALIMONY FIGHT

She charged Wakeman had failed to pay the money and that he was $1,825 in arrears.

London, Feb. 8.—The representative of the United States at Smyrna has joined the allies in a protest against the Turkish order that all foreign warships must leave that harbor, according to information received by the British Foreign Office from Constantinople.

Smyrna, Feb. 8 (By International News Service). — The Turkish military authorities extended by twenty-four hours the time limit of the ultimatum ordering Allied warships to withdraw from the harbor.

The new time limit expires at sunrise tomorrow. It was explained that the extension was granted pending orders from Angora. There are indications that the original order may be either modified or rescinded.

There are several large British warships in the harbor and one each

DECLARES ATOMIC THEORY IS CORRECT

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 8.—Dr. J. S. Plaskett, astronomer in charge of the Dominion Observatory near Victoria, B. C., announced here today that he had proved that the atom is the unit of construction throughout the universe.

The theory that atoms of the sun and stars are the same as those of the earth has been held for years by astronomers, Dr. Plaskett said, and declared that by measuring atoms in distant bodies he had proved the theory correct. Measurement was obtained by analyzing light coming from the bodies, Dr. Plaskett said.

CONGESTED NEW HAVEN YARDS BLOCK COAL FOR NEW ENGLAND

OTHER ROADS UNABLE TO DELIVER AT MAYBROOK

cite and bituminous coal for domestic purposes coming to your lines shall be hastened to their points of destination with the greatest possible dispatch? Our whole emergency is now entirely, as we see it, a matter of transportation. Therefore, it is necessary that we all, playing our respective parts in this work, concentrate very early on this angle of the situation."

The administrator previously had been relying on statistics to show that New England only thinks there is a coal shortage. He had statistics in his office, for instance, which proved that the city of Lawrence up to January 13 last had received 1,075 tons of hard coal more than its quota. Apparently, then, Lawrence had more than enough coal.

But the Mayor, Daniel W. Mahoney, and members of the Lawrence City Council, called on Administrator Phelan and told him there would be a shortage in Lawrence next week unless additional fuel was received at once.

Possibly Mr. Phelan is open to further conviction.

If he is, the American is pleased to inform him that the 150,000 tons of coal it discovered is on sidings and at gateway terminals of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

"ON THE WAY."

Officials of the road say that coal is "on its way." That's true. It is on its way.

But at the rate it is being moved New Englanders can expect relief by way of the New Haven some time in July.

Much of the distress from the shortage of coal in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut can be honestly laid to the door of the New Haven road.

The broken-down, makeshift locomotives used by the New Haven to "expedite" fuel to New England is the cause of the road's failure to do its part.

A reporter and photographer of the Boston American found 982 cars of coal in the Maybrook receiving yard at Maybrook, N. Y. Each carload averaged more than 50,000 tons in one yard alone.

SMALL PERCENTAGE.

At the Harlem River yard in New York City there is almost as much coal in the Maybrook receiving yard at Cedar Hill yard, New Haven, there is a like amount.

These are the three biggest yards of the system, and the total tonnage in these depots is only a small percentage of the aggregate amount of coal "in transit."

The failure of the New Haven to keep its freight moving has had the effect of blocking not only its own lines, but also the lines of the railroads which feed it with loaded coal cars.

There are 210 miles of tracks in the Maybrook yard. Today three-quarters of this trackage is loaded with freight cars. Some of them have been there since Christmas.

The yard is filled to capacity. One can walk for miles and see nothing but freight and coal cars.

BLOCKS OTHER ROADS.

These cars, some of them empties, are using space which, in the present emergency, should be used for coal.

Because of the congested condition of the yard, the company is able to receive only a limited quantity of coal from the mines.

The Maybrook yard is the largest receiving station on the New Haven system. Into this yard freight from at least a dozen other lines is brought from distribution points served by the New Haven.

It is through this gateway that the New Haven receives its coal shipments from the Lehigh & Hudson, the Erie, the Ontario & Western and the Lehigh & New England.

EMBARGO TOO LATE.

These roads for the most part are "coal roads"; with the New Haven they form a direct connecting link with the big Pennsylvania anthracite region.

Had the Maybrook yard been clear of freight New Englanders would not be experiencing difficulty in getting coal. As it is now the road is moving only about half of its normal freight tonnage.

Within the past twenty-four hours the New Haven has placed an embargo at Maybrook on all freight, excepting coal and perishable foodstuffs. By this means it is hoped that a part of the congestion can be relieved.

This embargo, costly and detrimental to shippers of general freight, may be the means of getting coal into New England more quickly. But it is a case of locking the barn after the horse is stolen.

ONLY 7 TRAINS A DAY.

Officials of the road at Maybrook showed figures to the American representatives to prove that within the past three months the road has shipped more coal through the gateway than at any similar period in the past.

But to do this the road has been forced to sacrifice its general freight shipments.

During these three months the road has concentrated its freight engines almost wholly on coal and withal it is able only to move about seven or eight trains a day out of the yards.

Four years ago when the New Haven was under the United States railroad administration there were twenty-four trains a day going out of Maybrook.

Now it is a big day if the road can move ten trains a day out of the yard. The average is about seven or eight.

ENGINES BREAK DOWN.

But moving the coal out of Maybrook is not getting it into the bins where it belongs.

Take an imaginary trip with a coal train leaving Maybrook for Boston.

HOW THE BOSTON AMERICAN INFORMED CONGRESS OF NEW England's coal scandal. The man in the photo is United States Senator David I. Walsh and the two youths are pages in the Senate. Aroused by the Boston American's expose of the situation, Senator Walsh has acted towards its relief. The pages distributed copies of the Boston American expose edition to the desks of every senator. Other pages delivered copies of the edition to every member of the House of Representatives.

FRED E. DAVIS, STAFF REPORTER, GATHERS THE REAL "statistics" of the coal shortage in New England at the Maybrook yards of the New Haven. Here he found cars of coal buried among the blockade, with little hope of digging them out. From the lips of New Haven officials and engine crews he learned the cause of the congestion which deprives New England of its coal by way of the New Haven—"rotten" locomotives. Moving coal from Maybrook is one engine breakdown after another, and the crews often refuse to man the engines offered them while repair shops and roundhouses are cluttered with "wrecks."

LAUGH THIS OFF TOO, MR. PHELAN

More statistics for Mr. Phelan:

A week ago soft coal at the mines sold at $4.14 a ton. Today it sells at $3.78 per ton. The figures are from Federal Fuel Distributor F. R. Wadleigh.

But in Boston it costs from $12 to $12.50 a ton.

And in other Massachusetts places the prices for soft coal today are:

Wakefield	$14.00 to $14.50
Canton	15.00
Norwood	12.00 to 14.00
Newton	13.50 to 14.00
Stoneham	14.50
Randolph	13.00
East Braintree	15.50

And at these prices—more than last year's cost for hard coal—the dealers in the various cities inform the American that there is a shortage in soft coal.

Laugh that off, Mr. Phelan.

for instance, a train which left there seen that a week ago.

The crew is given a patched up engine and start East. They go a few miles and the engine breaks down.

It cannot be repaired on the line. Another locomotive is sent for. An other start is made. A few miles further and this engine gives out to be replaced with another locomotive.

Sixteen hours after their start, from Maybrook, the crew finds that it has covered only forty-two miles. The Federal law will not allow the crew to work more than sixteen hours at a stretch and so they lay off for eight hours.

REFUSE TO MAN ENGINES.

After the lay off the crew tackles the train again. And again they meet with engine failure.

Such experiences are not remote ones for the New Haven crews. They are the rule rather than the exception.

It is not uncommon for engine crews to refuse to take out trains when they see the condition of the engine. The night before the Boston American representatives reached Maybrook such an incident occurred.

The crew, after examining the locomotive, decided that it was in no condition to pull its load. And so a train load of coal that should have started for Boston that night was held over for another day.

CREWS WITHOUT POWER.

At every freight yard and termi-

Coal Showers Make Bright the Lives of Newly-Weds

Westfield, Mass., Feb. 8.—Coal showers are all the rage here. The fuel shortage is so acute that new love nests are refrigerating plants.

Knowing that love's young dream becomes a nightmare when it's cold, prospective brides and grooms are being given coal showers. Each friend brings a pound of coal. If they can't afford that, they bring along half a pound.

It's the spirit of the thing that counts.

Wheat Up, Stocks Shaky Turks Like to Bargain Silly Democrats. Wise Dutch 5 in 9? Too Easy

—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

SURE enough, wheat went up and stocks were shaky yesterday. Speculators did not like things in Europe. War, more, seemed more probable. This, if true, means that stock owners would get frightened and sell for what they could get and that nations would get frightened and buy wheat for whatever they had to pay.

It's a regular child's "teeter-totter." When one end goes up the other must go down.

THE Turks suggest a separate treaty with England. France gave them arms to beat Greece and is enraged at their ingratitude.

Englishmen understand Orientals. The French do not. The Turks at Lausanne enjoy bargaining about a peace agreement, as in his bazaar, where he sits smoking and drinking his coffee; he enjoys bargaining on the price of a rare old Persian lamp made in Manchester.

DEMOCRATS are selecting possibilities for 1924, with their usual complete and engaging lack of intelligence.

Reactionaries who couldn't possibly be elected, no matter how many mistakes the Republicans may make, appear as favorites.

THE Dutch people are slow, cautious, and they look ahead. Now they are building substantial barbed wire fences along the frontier that separates Holland from Germany. Whether they expect marching troops or only custom house smugglers, they alone know. In either case the wire would be useful. Future wars may not respect neutrality.

THE French proceed slowly, steadily, in their German policy. Seven more German towns were seized yesterday.

France, it is said, will withdraw from the Ruhr if Germany will pay two thousand five hundred million gold marks immediately, plus four thousand million marks a little later.

Perhaps the Germans have not that much, perhaps the French didn't say when they would return, after withdrawing.

DOES any American, with no special reason for favoring dollars against men, object to Senator Borah's resolution declaring that no law should be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court unless seven of the nine justices agree?

Now, five out of nine can nullify the people's law-making power. And five out of nine have done it more than once, when eight out of nine American citizens would have voted the other way.

YOU can't convict a man unless all twelve jury men decide against him. Why should a bare majority of the Supreme Court be allowed to nullify all law? Those Supreme Court justices are not "red radicals." It would not be hard to get seven of the nine to vote against anything really dangerous.

BISHOP ANDERSON, Protestant Episcopal, urges all creeds to unite and rid Chicago of troubles "threatening civilization."

"These are days when thoughtful people are trembling for the future of our civilization," says the bishop.

The thoughtful, the microscopic minority, have always trembled for our civilization. They trembled for it with good cause when the Huns came in from the East, and when the Mohammedans came within an ace of imposing their religion on the whole of Western Europe.

And they trembled, as well they might, when the black death killed half the people and the living were unable to carry away the dead.

THOUGHTFUL people have always been trembling, and things have always been pretty bad, but luckily they have always been getting better. They will continue to get better, thanks largely to good men like Bishop Anderson, who keep the alarm bell ringing and slowly increase the number of those that think.

YALE MAY drop Latin or Greek as an "A. B." requirement. It makes no difference one way or the other. Men don't get an education in college. At best they get a smattering, and the habit of mental concentration. They get their education between forty and eighty.

A college is like a gymnasium. You can take a trapeze, parallel bars or punching bag out of the gymnasium; take Latin, Greek or logic or psychology out of the college without injuring the young men. It doesn't matter how they exercise as long as they do exercise. But somebody ought to write "an etymological Greek and Latin text book" that would teach the young in three months how to identify at sight English words borrowed from Greece and Rome.

PROFESSOR LEPPINAY, lecturing in Paris on animal psychology, says we ought to train cats for hunting, and for hunting rabbits especially, in place of dogs.

A cat is quick and knows enough not to bark while hunting. He is like some men in that, and like them in one other way. He will sit down and eat what he catches. Unlike the faithful, barking, foolish dog, he won't gallop back and lay it at your feet.

The most valuable worker, like the most valuable dog, is the one that will give up whatever he carries. There are plenty such, which makes it easy for the hunters.

I know certain people who predict in advance that they will have a sick headache on a certain day, in certain circumstances and on that day, in the given circumstances, sure enough, they feel it. They brought their illness on themselves, just as others cure theirs by conscious auto-suggestion.

I know that one generally passes for mad in the eyes of the world if one dares to put forward ideas which it is not accustomed to hear. Well, at the risk of being thought so, I say that if certain people are ill mentally and physically, it is that they imagine themselves to be ill mentally or physically. If certain others are paralytic without having any lesion to account for it, it is that they imagine themselves to be paralyzed, and it is among such persons that the most extraordinary cures are produced. If others again are happy or unhappy, it is that they imagine themselves to be, the one perfectly happy, the other absolutely wretched.

cases of paralysis, are nothing but the result of unconscious auto-suggestion, that is to say the result of the action of the unconscious upon the physical and moral being.

But if our unconscious is the source of many of our ills, it can also bring about the cure of our physical and mental ailments. It can not only repair the ill it has done, but cure real illnesses, so strong is its action upon our organism.

DOPE ORGY KILLS HUB GIRL

Former Telephone Operator, White Wife of Chinaman, Dies in New York

Marjorie Mahoney Jung of Dorchester, former Boston telephone operator, the white wife of a Chinaman, died of opium in the home of a friend in Mott street, Chinatown's Broadway, New York.

After an opium orgy she staggered into the tenement of Mrs. Lorena Chin, also the white wife of a Chinaman, and was dead within an hour.

"She mixed hop and whiskey. It always kills!" This is the terse epitaph of the veteran New York policeman of the Chinatown force, who was led to the body when it was discovered.

WORKED IN BOSTON.

Marjorie Mahoney was a telephone operator in the Beach exchange until eight years ago. After working a night shift she was in the habit of dropping into a Chinese restaurant and partaking of the food and atmosphere.

The exoticism of strange Oriental eating places had a compelling fascination for her, according to former associates in the telephone exchange. One day she told of visiting an opium den in Boston's Chinatown. Soon after she met Lee Jung, and married him.

GOES TO PROVIDENCE.

Jung went to Providence to engage in the Chinese grocery business. Marjorie went with him. That was three years ago. Recently she left Jung and went to New York alone. In the neighborhood of Pell and Mott streets, in the heart of the "Yellow Belt," Marjorie took up her habitat. She had the best assame possible to the forbidden things of that district—she was the white wife of a Chinaman. She was adopted as a favored daughter.

Her friend was Mrs. Chin, herself a former Boston telephone operator. The police declare that the ravages of opium had physically wrecked this girl so that her death was a matter of weeks.

Her husband, after the Chinese custom of caring for their dead, will bury the body.

SUFFERING IN FUEL FAMINE

West End Residents Without Coal All Winter; School Forced to Close

The West End is even colder than the bitter cold North End. In the little crooked streets back of the well-heated State House, the coal famine has reached its height.

There are tenements with rags stuffed in the chinks in the wall to keep out the wind, cold as the grave from a whole Winter spent without coal.

Schools are unheated. Last week the Girls' High School on Bennett street was closed for two days because the girls were sick from doing their lessons with chattering teeth and stiff blue fingers.

And the Hebrew School on North Russell street, where the smaller children shiver and sneeze through their daily classes, has been without coal for weeks.

At the settlement house headquarters of the Jewish Federated Charities at No. 43 Allen street, the workers—who are supposed to bring succor to the people in their distress—the workers themselves are all out sick from the chill of the unheated building.

PRICES PROHIBITIVE.

Pedlars' prices are prohibitive. They charge $1.30 for 100 pounds of soft coal, mostly sand. And $25 for a ton to those wealthy ones who can afford to buy in ton lots. And even at these prices there is but a limited supply.

Every day a line of people marches across the Massachusetts avenue bridge to buy coal in the Cambridge yards, where, if you can get it, it's cheaper.

Last Sunday the Batchelder Coal Company distributed all the coal they had at the Charles street station for seventy-five cents a hundred pounds as long as it lasted.

LINE OF 300.

Before 6 o'clock in the morning a line of 300 ill-clothed men and women and little children hardly as big as the sacks they carried were waiting outside the door in the icy wind, with the thermometer reading twelve above zero.

And heading the line was a bent old man, eighty-five years old. His one bare room had been unheated all Winter.

But there were thousands in the West End that the coal distributers could not reach.

The Rubenstein family, for instance. They live at No. 24 Barton place, a mother, a father and seven children. The mother has just had an operation. The father is a presser and his small salary goes to keep his brood from starving.

There is no money left over for coal at $25 a ton. One tiny gas heater, poisoning the air and giving almost no heat, tries to warm the entire apartment.

The Freedmans life at No. 30 Barton street. There the family numbers four. There has been no heat whatever in that house all Winter. Ten-year-old Rose, the youngest, is pale and thin.

"My rose I love so much, I am afraid for her," said the mother with resigned martyrdom in her eyes. "I have to dress her in her coat and send her outdors to keep warm.

ONLY FOR RICH.

"It is so cold, she seems not healthy, like other girls. We have no coal—they tell us there is no coal. Today I saw two big trucks full to the top with coal, stop outside a rich house on Beacon street. The coal is only for the rich."

AUSTRALIAN BEAUTY IN FARRAR TANGLE

LORNA AMBLER

For the first time since the smash-up of the Geraldine Farrar-Lou Tellegen romance, the name of the "other woman" has been mentioned. She is said to be Miss Ambler, Australian actress who played opposite Tellegen in "Blind Youth." Miss Ambler is now in Europa. (Photo by International News Reel.)

HUSBAND SEEKING $150,000

New York Man Is Accused of Stealing the Affections of Former Bay State Girl

Haverhill, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Mollie Grace O'Donnell Aiken, former Haverhill beauty, figures in a $150,000 alienation suit filed in New York against Morris Sweetwood of No. 342 Madison avenue, New York, it was learned here today.

Mrs. Aiken is the daughter of Patrolman Michael O'Donnell of the Haverhill police. She married Aiken in June, 1922, and lived with him but two months. Friends of Mrs. Aiken say she knew Sweetwood before her marriage to Aiken.

Sweetwood accompanied Mrs. Aiken to Haverhill on a visit last Summer and gave a dinner for twelve at Ferncroft which caused much comment at the time. Sweetwood is now charged with alienation. He was arrested by a deputy sheriff on an order by Justice McAvoy of New York and was released on $500 bail.

160,000 CARLOADS OF POTATOES UNSOLD

Chicago, Feb. 8.—One hundred and sixty thousand carloads of last season's record-breaking potato crop still are in possession of growers, a surplus without precedent in the last nine years. The condition was said to be due to difficulty in moving the unusually large crop. It was estimated that only about one-half the 160,000 carloads would be marketed and the remainder held for seed. Early Spring products from Florida and the South increased on the markets and in some instances prices dropped.

KING GEORGE IS HAPPY OVER 1ST GRANDCHILD

By DAVID M. CHURCH.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Feb. 8.—Princess Mary, Viscountess Lascelles, daughter of King George and Queen Mary, to whom a son was born last night, was resting easily today. The son is described as "a fine, healthy child."

All Britain joined in universal rejoicing today over the birth of the first grandchild of the King and Queen. King George was described as the "happiest, proudest man in the empire."

Dr. Henry Simson and Dr. Stanley Hewett, the attending physicians, said that the Viscountess had spent a comfortable night. She plans to go to southern France after the baby is christened.

SELECTING BABY'S NAME.

Telegrams were sent out early today notifying the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, Prince George and other members of the royal family of the happy event. Soon telegrams of congratulation were pouring into Chesterfield House.

It is expected that the baby's full name will be selected from those of his most intimate relatives, being limited to four or five Christian names. Names of foreign royalty will be excluded, contrary to the old custom.

Members of the royal circle believe that the boy's name most likely will be George Henry Edward Ulick.

THE CHRISTENING ROBE.

The christening robe will be a rich garment covered with old lace which has been in the royal family for four generations. It was first used at the christian of the late King Edward VII.

The christening probably will take place in the chapel royal of St. James Palace, with the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family standing as god parents. The date of the christening has not been fixed.

There was much jubilation and excitement among all the members of the royal household extending to the servants of Buckingham and St. James palaces.

It is likely that King George will soon make Viscount Lascelles the father, an earl, thereby making the infant heir to the earldom.

TRIED FOR MURDER DONE 44 YEARS AGO

Lumberton, N. C., Feb. 8.—Joseph S. Kemp was freed today of the charge of murdering Daniel E. McNeill on August 15, 1878. The jury deliberated twenty-nine minutes. Kemp's plea was self-defence. Malcolm D. McNeill, a brother of the slain man, testified that he was present at the time of the killing, forty-four years ago, and that it was he result of an argument between his brother and Kemp.

Kemp was apprehended in St. Augustine, Fla., after a chance conversation had revealed his identity.

LIEUT. HINTON WINS IN FLIGHT TO BRAZIL

By the Associated Press.

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, Feb. 8.—Lieutenant Walter Hinton, the American aviator, arrived here today, completing his seaplane flight from New York to Rio Janeiro.

CIGARETTES AND GOWNS TO MATCH

New York, Feb. 8.—The dainty female smoker now must select her cigarettes as regards color with as much care as she does her evening gowns, if she would be fashionable.

Lavender, blue, red, mauve, lilac—all shades, to match gowns and moods and surroundings are the latest styles. And with the new fad comes a new source of revenue for he dressmaker—that of tobacconist.

The idea originated in the mind of a Madison avenue dressmaker, who provided her models with varicolored cigarettes to match the gowns they were wearing.

$75,000 FIRE IN BALDWINSVILLE

Baldwinsville, Feb. 8.—The furniture factory of Kenney Brothers & Volters was destroyed, and its stock in outbuildings damaged today by a fire that caused a loss of $75,000.

The fire apparently started from a cigarette butt thrown into the well of an elevator well.

It was discovered by W. S. Kenney, one of the partners in the firm, before the operatives reported today. About seventy-five persons were thrown out of work by the fire.

5 YOUNG THUGS SENTENCED FOR ROBBING MAN

Five youthful thugs of South Boston were sentenced to three months each in the House of Correction today by Judge Dean in South Boston Court, on a charge of robbery. They are:

Andrew Griffin, No. 23 Eastman road, Dorchester.

Mark E. Ridge, No. 17 Leroy street, Dorchester.

Joseph Flaherty, No. 209 Third street, South Boston.

Vincent Logan, No. 117 Second street, South Boston.

Leo Downey, No. 237 C street, South Boston.

The youths are alleged to have beaten up and robbed James Brady, of No. 24 Charendon street, South Boston, of $9 at C street and Broadway. Patrolman Albert Dunn appeared on the scene just as the five were running away. Brady was left bleeding and in a semi-conscious condition in the street.

The boys fled to a house at No. 237 C street, and locked themselves up in one of the flats. When they refused to open the door on orders from the policeman, he drew his club, battered down the door, and placed the five under arrest.

They appealed the sentence of Judge Dean and were held each in bail of $1,000 for the grand jury.

JUDGE AND MAYOR FIRST JAIL INMATES

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 8.—Judge J. L. Earman of the Municipal Court, and Mayor L. J. Biggers, sentenced by Judge E. C. Davis of the Circuit Court to ten days in jail for contempt of court, today had the distinction of being the first inmates of the new County Jail.

The conviction for contempt followed a remark made by the Mayor in a speech that "In our town we have a circuit judge who is as weak as water," and a letter written by Judge Earman regarding Judge Davis' disposition of a case appealed from the Municipal Court.

HEART STOPS 12 MINUTES; THEN GIRL REVIVES

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Feb. 8.—Minnie Lifshitz at twentytwo knows more about the mystery of death than most philosophers. She was dead for twelve minutes, physicians said, her heart stopped beating and respiration ceased. Dr. Leon Antell brought her back to life by slitting her windpipe with a razor blade to re-establish passage of air to her lungs.

A tube was inserted in the girl's neck. Four days later she fell into a coma. When she came to, she was blind. Today she has regained her sight and is believed to be on the road to recovery.

The case is diagnosed as encephalitis, or brain inflammation and is attracting wide attention.

FARM WAGES DROP FROM 3 TO 6 PER CENT.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Farm wages are lower than they were three months ago. Declines ranging from 3.1 per cent. to 6.4 per cent. for various parts of the country are disclosed in the survey of the Department of Agriculture. By the lay without board the highest average was $2.82 in the North Atlantic States and the lowest, $1.40, in the South Atlantic States. By the day with board the highest average was $2.13 in the North Atlantic States and the lowest $1.05 in the South Atlantic States.

IRISH TROOPSHIP BADLY DAMAGED

Queenstown, Feb. 8 (By the Associated Press).—The troops carried by the Free State Government steamer Silevenamon, which struck the rocks twelve miles southeast of this port yesterday, have been landed by small boats at Ballycottin.

The vessel, a patrol boat, is so badly damaged that she still remains where she struck. The crew was also taken off.

of the American, French, Italian and Dutch navies, besides a flotilla of lighter craft.

The allied high commissioners said that, instead of withdrawing the war craft, reinforcements would be sent. Mustapha Kemal Pasha has gone to Angora to assume command of the troops.

British officials are gratified that Premier Poincare of France took the initiative in warning the Turks after Angora made known its demand.

They say that this indicates an anglo-French unity in the Near East. Turkish newspapers have little comment upon the Smyrna situation but they have a great deal to say about the Lausanne peace conference. One paper referred to the Allies' terms as "barbarous," saying that "if Germany had been victorious in the war, the peace terms could not have been more harsh."

War Certain Unless Turks Back Down

Paris, Feb. 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The French Press attaches the greatest importance to the Smyrna situation, regarding it to be so delicate as to render the declaration of war inevitable unless the Turks recede from their position in demanding the withdrawal of Allied warships.

Huge Fleet Blockades Coast of Turkey

Malta, Feb. 8 (By International News Service).—There are more than forty British, French and Italian warships of various sizes in Turkish waters. The Turkish coast is virtually blockaded by the entire British Mediterranean fleet and part of the Atlantic fleet. Some of the warships are lying off Constantinople, in the Sea of Marmora, off Chanak in the Dardanelles, and off Kumkaleh at the entrance to the Turkish straits, and off Smyrna and others are cruising father south in the region of Adalia and Cyprus.

There has been a steady flow of British troops eastward although not all are destined for Chanak and Constantinople. Some are going to Mesopotamia, where the Turks are threatening land invasion, others to India and some to China.

The dreadnaught King George has joined the British fleet in Turkish waters.

The allied military and land forces is the greatest display of armed strength concentrated in one area since the great war.

Turks 19 to 47 Years Old Called to the Colors

London, Feb. 8.—The order of the Turkish commander that all allied warships of over 1,000 tons must quit Smyrna immediately was followed by the calling of all Turkish males between the ages of nineteen and forty-seven to the colors.

Heavy artillery is being dispatched by the Turks from Eastern Thrace across the Black Sea and the Sea of Marmora. All Turkish officers on the active and retired lists have been instructed to register for service.

Rear Admiral Nicholson, aboard the British light cruiser Curacoa, standing off Mytilene, has been ordered to enter Smyrna harbor today to support, if necessary, the cruiser Calypso.

Ruhr Coal Output Steadily Increasing

Dusseldorf, Feb. 8.—(By International News Service)—Militarization of the Rhineland railways and pressure upon German workers is steadily increasing the amount of coal and coke obtained by the French and Belgians from the Ruhr, it was claimed today by the French military authorities.

The French say soon from 10 to 20 trains daily will be leaving for France, Belgium and Italy.

More stringent regulations are being made to deal with disorders. Proclamations are being posted threatening death for those guilty of sabotage or wilful destruction of property.

Hugo Stinnes, who has been at his home in Mulheim, was quoted as saying:

"There will be no negotiations by us. We are going to fight this thing out."

Stinnes, more than any other German, is affected by the Ruhr invasion, owing to his large properties in the Rhineland.

Complete Coal Tieup in France Is Threatened

Paris, Feb. 8.—A complete tieup of coal production throughout France and Germany is threatened by February 16, when the French miners have decided to call a general strike.

Already 75,000 miners are out of work in the Ruhr, while the spasmodic "jumping strikes" in the occupied territory has almost completely stopped production there.

Talk of shutting down many of the large steel iron and textile works is current in France today.

Today's Paris Journal carries an article by Deputy Rollin which declares:

"If the outlook does not change, pre will be forced soon to leave paper china.

ETHEL DEVINE.
FEARLAND CUMMINGS.

The eighteen-year-old Bridgeport, Ct., girl is named by Springfield police as the first wife of Cummings, a railroad policeman. A Springfield widow, with three children and a Hartford, Ct., girl are the others.

SPECIAL POLICE OFFICER HAS 3 'WIVES'

Springfield, Feb. 8.—Pearland Cummings, railroad policeman, has three wives instead of two as at first supposed, according to the Springfield police who had him arrested in Colchester, Ct., on the charge of violating his probation on a bigamy charge. Cummings' known wives are:

No. 1, Ethel Devine, daughter of William Devine, of Bridgeport, Ct.

No. 2, Mrs. Lincoln Doe, a widow with three children, of this city.

No 3, Miss Louise Smith, known also as Wantz, now living in Hartford, Ct.

Cummings was arrested here in November on complaint of Mrs. Doe. He was placed on probation. This week, however, the local police were informed he was again living with Miss Devine in Colchester. The police have just discovered that Miss Smith is still another wife.

Two Billions Paid by Germany Since Armistice

London, Feb. 8. — In a statement showing payments by Germany since the armistice, Dr. Friedrich Sthamer, the German ambassador here, says that the allied governments and their citizens have received 450,000,000 pounds sterling (over two billion dollars).

In addition to this sum he states that Germany has lost in liquidated property abroad $85,000,000 pounds, has loaned her allies $50,000,000 pounds, has suffered losses of 25,000,000 pounds in the Saar Valley mines, and been deprived of state property in the "lost provinces" of 225,000,000 pounds.

HEAD-ON CRASH OF PROVIDENCE CARS; 4 HURT

Providence, Feb. 8.—Four persons were injured, one perhaps fatally, when two trolleys crashed head on at Jackson street and Broadway, today.

Both cars were knocked half off the tracks and traffic was tied up for more than one hour before wrecking crews could clear the tracks.

Neither motorman was injured, although the fronts of both cars were badly damaged. The conductor of one, an Academy avenue trolley, was the most seriously injured. The victims:

John Black, conductor, of No. 144 Warren avenue, cuts and bruises of the leg and body and internal injuries.

Victor Wichman, of No. 1321 Dean street, Brooklyn, N. Y., cuts and bruises and possibly internal injuries.

Edgson Mott, Olneyville, R. I., cuts and bruises.

Thomas A. Carleon of No. 18 Park avenue, Riverside, bruises and contusions.

The noise of the crash was heard blocks away. The Academy avenue car was driven by Motorman J. A. Jansen of No. 96 Harold street. It was unoccupied. The Plainfield street trolley was operated by R. W. Powers of No. 100 Ellery street. All the injured except Black were aboard this car.

"WIDOW" OF 1812 VETERAN HELD

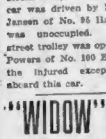
Baltimore, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Matilda Tyler, sixty-six was under arrest today charged with unlawfully receiving a government pension by representing herself as the widow of a veteran of the War of 1812.

Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mary E. Poskelly, was charged with conspiring with Mrs. Tyler to defraud the government of a $90 quarterly pension payment.

Mrs. Tyler was alleged to have accepted payments since 1916, and her husband, who died in that year, was said to have received vouchers since the death of his mother, the rightful pensioner, in 1898.

JENNINGS IS NAMED ON STREET BOARD

P. Harry Jennings of No. 749 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, has been appointed street commissioner by Mayor Curley, at a salary of $4,000 to succeed Richard F. Andrews, who resigned last month, but who is still serving as a member of the board until his successor is confirmed by the Civil Service Commission.



P. H. Jennings.

Jennings is business agent of the Boston Central Labor Union, International vice-president of the Teamsters' Union and secretary of the local Teamsters' Union.

Andrews was appointed during the Peters' administration and is a Republican. Gossip had it that a Republican should have been appointed to succeed him, but there is no law that says that the Board of Street Commissioners shall have a Republican member.

2 SALEM MEN HELD FOR TAKING AUTO

Salem, Feb. 8.—Joseph F. Frye, of No. 11 Ames street, Salem, and Frank J. Rabbitt of No. 13 Ilse street, Salem, appeared in court today, charged with unlawfully appropriating the auto of Henry J. Marchant of No. 135 Bridge street, Salem. The car was taken Tuesday night. Wednesday night the car was driven into a Lynn garage. Inspector Roger arrested the pair and, in addition, held Frank Whipple of Bridge street, Salem, charged with driving without a license.

Frye and Rabbitt pleaded guilty and were held in $500 until Friday. Beverly police charge Frye and Rabbitt with larceny of $18 from Joseph A. Rivard of that city. They will face this charge later.

Baby Carriages to Carry Headlight Under N. Y. Bill

Albany, Feb. 8.—Day by day, in every way, the expense of having a baby is getting higher. Now comes the news from the State House that baby carriages will be required by law to have headlights and taillights if taken out at night.

The law reads "from an hour before sunset to an hour before sunrise." When the old man steps out to push the kid around the block after supper, if his lights are not burning brightly, he will have to tell the traffic cop why, just like the flivver-driver.

The Legislature apparently takes the bill seriously.

SCHICK PRAISES BOSTON USE OF SERUM

Dr. John A. Ceconi, city epidemiologist, and his staff of assistants, showed to Dr. Schick, discoverer of the anti-toxin named for him, which immunes children against diphtheria, how the "Schick test" is administered in Boston, at a public clinic held at the Blossom street health unit, West End.

Dr. Shick was the guest of Dr. Charles F. Wilinsky, in charge of the unit, and made a brief address complimenting the unit upon the good work that it was doing for poor families in this congested district.

He was also loud in his praise of Dr. Ceconi, who has, up to date, "Schicked" 23,500 school children, 10,000 of whom are absolutely immunised against diphtheria, a record still to be topped by any city in the United States.

SETTLE DEATH CASE OUTSIDE COURT

Mrs. Hulda Makinen's suit for $15,000 against the Brockton & Plymouth Street Railway Company and the Edison Electric Illuminating Company for the death of her husband, has been settled by counsel for the defendant companies without the case going before a Federal Jury for a verdict. Mrs. Makinen claimed her husband's death was caused when he came in contact with a live feed wire of the street railway on December 26, 1920, at Bryantville.

WIFE SAYS MATE FED HER POISON IN CAKE

Lillian J. Nelson of Wollaston was granted a divorce, decree nisi, from her husband, Harry T. Nelson of Wollaston, by Judge Lummus in the Norfolk Superior Court, Dedham.

Mrs. Nelson said that she was given some cocoanut cakes by her husband and after she ate them she became ill. William B. McCullar brother-in-law of Nelson, testified that he saw Nelson break a cocoanut cake, take a vial from his pocket and put something into the cake and then pass the cake to Mrs. Nelson.

GUNMEN ROB STOREKEEPER OF $114

Morris Segal was alone in his store at No. 274 Columbus avenue, South End, when two men entered. While one stood guard at the door, the other pointed a revolver at Morris and forced him to open the cash register and turn over $114, the day's proceeds. After telling the proprietor not to open his mouth for five minutes the men disappeared.

The storekeeper described the men as follows: No. 1, about thirty years, five feet four inches, wearing a brown overcoat and soft hat; the other as about twenty-five years, five feet six inches, wearing a brown overcoat and soft hat.

Boys Back From Rhine Find Cloud in Great Welcome Given Them on Arrival

By Associated Press

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 8.—Some 400 soldiers, who returned to America yesterday aboard the transport St. Mihiel from the Rhineland and the families of twenty-four of the men were resting today at Fort Screven after a hectic day here, during which they paraded, feasted and danced.

Their buddies, with whom they represented the United States at Coblenz, were en route today to Charleston aboard the transport on which they returned to America.

The German, French and Belgian wives of the enlisted men were expected to experience difficulty today in arranging their households at the fort. Some had little household goods and some had none.

DOLLAR IS ONLY A DOLLAR.

The vessel being too crowded, much of the possessions of the soldiers was left at Coblenz and Antwerp.

The wives also were becoming acquainted with the poignant truth that a dollar is just a dollar, and that a soldier in the ranks is paid but thirty of them each month. While some of the women dismissed as an annoying bugaboo the matter of rate of exchange in Germany, others appeared to regard the money question as having direct bearing on their future happiness.

The latter recited that when an American goes to a motion picture theatre he spends as much for a ticket as a German pays a servant for a month's work.

PLAY HOSE ON CROWD.

The matter of studiously considering the English language was an important topic. The majority of the German wives speak but little English.

Savannah today settled down to quietude after the greatest celebration of a patriotic nature ever staged here. The soldiers were greeted by an immense throng, representing virtually every section of the country. Some of the soldiers had been away from America five years.

In all there were sixty-five German wives, four French and two Belgian, with twenty-four children. Some wives were left behind, to be brought to America later, on account of the crowded condition of the transport, and there were some hurried marriages.

As the ship docked fire hose had to be brought into action to allow debarkation of the troops after the crowds had stormed the docks and overpowered the policemen.

WYNN EVEN FUNNIER THAN HE LOOKS

SCENE FROM "THE PERFECT FOOL"

Ed Wynn and Flo Newton in one of their amusing moments at the Colonial.

'PERFECT FOOL' AN ANTIDOTE FOR BLUES

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

LET'S be fair to Ed Wynn in the first paragraph—before you settle down into critical reserve—and raise your voice right lustily to the effect that he is the funniest comedian in the world. Mind you, we don't say he's the best comedian, although he measures up fairly well with any of the brighter lights mentioned in the latest "Who's Who," but you cannot take away from this be-goggled chatterbox of musical nonsense that most emphatically he is the funniest combination of actor and monologist that ever upset the dignity of a respectable Bostonese audience.

NOTHING BUT LAUGHS.

Art has no bounds; its expanse is limitless. And in like fashion you may mention the fun of Ed Wynn as he tossed it about in "The Perfect Fool" yesterday afternoon at the Colonial Theatre. You may call it art or just plain buffoonery, but the simple facts in the case were that you left the theatre with both funny bones cracking under the strain.

It was a man from East Pepperell, sitting alongside, who applied the finishing touches. "The authorities should stop this show in the interest of public health," he remarked, "because it cannot be healthy to laugh so much." And the sin of it all was on the head of Ed Wynn, who hardly gave himself the benefit of breathing space between scenes and who treated the audience in similary shameless fashion. You were lucky to escape with nothing more serious than aching sides.

According to the printed program—and programs never lie—"The Perfect Fool" confirmed your own opinion that Ed Wynn was at the bottom of everything that had a laugh concealed in it. He was given credit for the book, lyrics and music. While you cannot go into fever heat over the music of the lyrics, although they do hold their own against most of our recent afflictions in that line, the book was a work of art. It was even more than that—it was a monologue that runs for nearly three hours, with Wynn in high gear and the audience in joyous surrender.

19 LUXURIOUS SCENES.

There was neither head nor tail to "The Perfect Fool." It started nowhere and ended nowhere, but it did run through nineteen luxurious scenes, with Wynn's riotous comedy flanked on all sides by pretty girls, acrobats and ensemble numbers of more than passing quality. The high lights of the performances were discovered in Mr. Wynn's three important ventures—in acrobatics, in psycho analysis, and his fifteen minutes with an old-fashioned female quartet. Anyone of these features furnished enough material for the basic structure of a complete show. And besides this there were girls in rich costumes, scenic splendors of rare beauty and associate entertainers of acknowledged ability, who had but little to do. Among the latter may be mentioned Flo Newton and True Rice, who rambled through several scenes with Mr. Wynn; Estelle Penning, who contributed a few shapely classics in the form of dancing; John Dale, who also danced, and the Meyako trio of Japanese folk.

"The Perfect Fool" had more consistent good humor, more persistently sustained comedy, with not even the suggestion of a letdown, than any edition of the "Follies" we have ever seen. If it hurts you to laugh, keep away from Ed Wynn.

'SWEET ADELINE' OUT OF CITY HOSPITAL

"Sweet Adeline" Lawson has left the City Hospital and returned to her home on Mason terrace, Brookline.

She will not discuss the cause of the scene in front of the Touraine Hotel when, after beating her fists against the face and chest of Robert D. Farrington, wealthy broker of Boston, she collapsed.

Mr. Farrington denies he is anything more than a casual friend of the girl.

"I see her very seldom," he said. "We merely happened to meet and I asked her to go to dinner with me. She said she'd be glad to. We met downtown about 6 and went to a restaurant. We had nothing to drink. There was no quarrel."

Hearst Party Aids in Welcome to Troops

By Universal Service

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 8.—Never before has the "Queen City of the South," the State of Georgia, and the United States itself as represented by thirty members of Congress who came as the guests of William Randolph Hearst, opened its hearts and gave forth its feeling of joy in a huge universal shout as it did when the transport St. Mihiel came into port bringing the last of the American troops back from the Rhine.

Bands blared out in mingled tunes, whistles shrieked, guns boomed, and everybody took a holiday to greet the boys who set the record of being the only army in the history of the world that ever left occupied foreign territory bearing with them the good wishes of the beaten enemy and the enemy's regrets that the conquerors had departed.

As the first of the boys stepped ashore the combined bands struck up the "Star Spangled Banner," and the boys and the greeting crowds set up a great cheer and stood bareheaded. Then, as though to make the German wives, babies and mothers-in-law of the boys who married on the Rhine feel at home, the bandsmen dug up the long lost score of "Die Wacht Am Rhine," and the "visitors" took heart, for they found they were coming to a land as friendly as were the representatives of that land who went to fight the militarism that gripped their native land.

Women's Poker Game Ruining Homes, Judge Asserts

New York, Feb. 8.—War has been declared on women's poker parties.

After holding Mrs. Fannie Sprague in $500 bail on a charge of operating and maintaining a gambling game, Magistrate Oberwager declared:

"I am going to stamp out poker games among married women. Many homes are ruined as a result of married men stealing and robbing in order to satisfy their wives' demand for money to engage in these games.

Mrs. Sprague was arrested as a result of the complaints of husbands that their wives were losing money at her apartment.

BURGIN STRING QUARTET AT JORDAN HALL

By ZOE FABER.

"The Burgins," consisting of Richard Burgin, first violin; Fernand Thillois, second violin; George Fourel, viola, and Jean Bedetti, 'cello, gave the first concert of their second season in Jordan Hall before an audience of fair size. Mr Heinrich Gebhard, pianist, was the assisting artist, if one who takes equal part in a quintet can be so called.

It was a far cry from the expected music of a string quartet to the "Five Pieces for String Quartet," by Casella, young, modern Italian composer and pianist, who will later be heard with the Symphony.

This group was heard for the first time in America here, and it is safe to say that one will not hear it to the point of boredom, for it is not the sort of thing that will be taken up madly.

The Brahms Piano Quintet in F minor was particularly well played, and one noted with pleasure that the quartet is more of a quartet and less of four individual players than last season. Mr. Gebhard's part was well sustained and thoroughly enjoyed.

GERMANY PROTESTS INVASION OF BADEN

London, Feb. 8 (By International News Service).—Herr Sthamer, German ambassador to England, called at the foreign office today and presented a note protesting against the French occupation of Appenweier and Offenburg in Baden on the ground that the Rhineland commission, under the Versailles treaty, has not the power to permit such occupation.

They bought an AMPICO and so we have:

"Complete Clearance" is the order of things here at the end of the season. And this year—as much as ever—we must make a very thorough clearance before the new season opens. As you will see—we are making over the department. We are growing—expanding—and the workmen are on the job.

NEW HAMPSHIRE PROVES COLD TO KU KLUX

Concord, N. H., Feb. 8.—The Koo Koos are spending money for postage hereabouts. Every member of the House of Representatives received a circular marked "confidential" in which an invitation was extended to attend a meeting at which "the ideals of an American organization will be explained."

Those who received the letter were advised that it was necessary for them, in order to be eligible for membership to be:

1. White.
2. Gentile.
3. Protestant.
4. American born.
5. Possessed of Protestant parents.
6. Possessed of a Protestant wife, if married.

More than 300 invitations were mailed. The meeting was duly held, with about twenty in attendance. Most of the twenty came out of curiosity. George W. Mason, who signed the invitation, presided at the session, which was held at Capital Hall on Warren street.

He garnered absolutely no Klan coin, and it is said departed from Concord with maledictions on the un-Americanism of the legislators.

VALENTINE PARTY OF C. F. HOVEY CLUB

The second annual Valentine party of the C. F. Hovey Women's Club, held last evening in the Chateau Dansant attracted one of the largest gatherings of employes and their friends since the club began its social activities. The various departments of the store were represented on the entertainment and reception committees, and a score of assistants directed the dancing.

Miss Dolly Von Elte, Miss Persis Lothrop, Mrs. Katherine Saunders and Miss Rose Moran directed the general entertainment features.

Among the honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Kammeyer and Richard Ehrlich, son of the president of the company. During the intermission exhibition dances were given by Harold McTighe and Miss Mildred Brennan.

A feature of the evening was a prize dance. The winners were Miss Marion Davis and John Brandt. The judges were Richard Ehrlich, Myer Hoffman, Mrs. Katherine Saunders and Mrs. Kathleen Travis.

ROUND TABLE AT JORDAN MARSH'S

The final meeting of the Jordan Marsh Company Shoe Department's Round Table was held as a banquet in the store's grill room. The organization, composed of all members of the different shoe-selling departments of the store, is affiliated with the Retail Shoe Men's Institute. Regular meetings have been held every week, at which time topics pertaining to shoe manufacturing were discussed. The festivities included musical selections and speaking.

BEVERLY MAN SEEKS TO ANNUL MARRIAGE

Frederick B. Durling of No. 4 Lovett street, Beverly, has petitioned the Probate Court at Salem to annul his marriage to Theresa McKeever Riley of Cambridge.

Durling, in his petition, states that he was married in New York on September 12, 1914, and lived with his wife until December 5, 1920, when, he states, he discovered she was the wife of another.

Durling alleges she married Joseph Francis Riley, also of Cambridge, in that city on October 5, 1903, and that they had never been divorced.

"KOO KOO" INVITATION.

This invitation met with little response in Concord, N. H., and the organizer departed after addressing one small gathering.

3 CHILDREN ARE VICTIMS OF GAS

Three young Jamaica Plain children were partially overcome by gas while their mother was away from home.

They are the children of Mrs. Etta Borden of No. 12 Custer street. When the mother went out on an errand, she left Evelyn, six years; Mary, four years, and William, three years, alone in the house.

According to the police, William got up on a chair and turned on two gas burners on the kitchen range. Martin Hughes, a lodger at that address, detected the odor of gas and traced it to the Borden apartment.

Opening the door, he found the three children unconscious on the floor.

Why Colds Lead to Pneumonia

When a cold is neglected it attacks the lining of the breathing passages — then may be pneumonia. Father John's Medicine treats colds and helps to prevent pneumonia because it nourishes the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter—any other way of treating a cold is likely to lead to pneumonia. Not a "cough syrup" or "balsam" depending upon dangerous and weakening drugs, but a food medicine and body builder.

HELPLESS SHIP LOSES OFFICER IN STORM

Curling, N. F., Feb. 8.—The coastal steamer Kyle, beset by storms off St. Pierre and Miquelon while trying to make the run from St. John's to Louisburg, sent word by radio today that she had lost the use of both her steam steering gear and the hand steering wheel. Second Officer Carter lost his life in the gale. Several of the crew were injured.

Captain Stevenson said he was making efforts between storms to attach the steering chains to the after winch and to try to steer the steamer in that way.

The Kyle is badly iced up. She started from St. John's Saturday night and should have reached Louisburg two or three days ago.

Old Signal Lights Start South End Dynamite Scare

Occupants of the house at No. 16 Corning street, South End, were alarmed when what was believed to be dynamite was found in the building.

While cleaning the cellar William Grover found four suspicious looking sticks. He called Patrolman Melbonouch of the Lagrange street station who turned them over to Walter Wedger. After examination the expert said the sticks were old signal lights used by the railroads.

RESCUE CREW OF MAINE VESSEL OFF VIRGINIA

The schooner was blown ashore during a severe snowstorm Monday evening. The cutter Manning was unable to get any closer than a mile and the men had to be taken off in small boats.

PHYSICIAN WINS AIRPLANE RACE WITH DEATH

Petoskey, Mich., Feb. 8.—In a giant De Havland bombing plane, Dr. R. Armstrong of Charlevoix, Mich., flew into the wilderness of Beaver Island, toe bound in Lake Michigan, in the to save the life of Jess Cole.

Cole, unconscious since an iron log jammer crushed his skull, will live, following an operation.

A telephone wire and a thin bridge of ice were all that connected Beaver Island with the outside world.

While the plane from Seifridge Field, piloted by Sergeant Luff Meredith, was winging its way through the snow storm and icy air, northward from Mt. Clemens, Dr. J. B. Brown, of Levering, Mich., was attempting to make his way across the ice. He was overtaken by the army plane bearing Dr. Armstrong.

The plane covered the 240-mile trip in two hours and forty-five minutes. Eighty minutes later it left on its return trip.

From Charlevoix to Beaver Island is twenty-four miles, twenty-four miles of surging, piling waste of the ice floes and rifts of open water. The trip of the other physician required fourteen hours.

WOMAN INJURED IN FALL FROM CAR

Injured while alighting from a Huntington avenue outbound car Mrs. Katherine Kennedy, forty years old, living at the Y. W. C. A., No. 42 Berkeley street, appeared today at the City Hospital for treatment. Her injuries consisted of a strained back and bruises to the knee and ankle. The accident happened in front of Mechanics Building.

WOMAN CHARGES LARCENY OF $8,000

Larceny from Elisabetta F. Volturno, grocery store proprietor, No. 378 Main street, Medford, is charged to Leo J. Spinella, thirty-five years old, of No. 1200 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, formerly connected with the credit department of the International Trust Company. He was taken into custody by Headquarters Inspectors Flaherty, Finn and Eagan.

A Medford Italian, reported to have been a business partner of Spinella, is also sought. The warrants charge larceny of 200,000 Italian lire valued at $8,000.

The woman asserts the missing man came to her and borrowed the lira. He represented, she says, that the International Trust desired to borrow them at a fair rate of interest. After three and one-half months the woman was to receive $136 interest on her loan.

The young man paid the interest when it fell due, she says, but she became suspicious and demanded the return of her money. She was told to visit a foreign exchange office operated by Spinella and Geno Piratti, of No. 71 Wareham street, Medford, she says, but failed to get her money back.

Inspectors found that the International Trust Company had in no way authorized Spinella, or anyone else to negotiate for the Volturno woman's money. He had acted, they said, on his own authorization.

"THE FOOL" GIVEN NEW YORK TRYOUT

The company especially engaged to present "The Fool" in Boston made a one-night stand of New York yesterday afternoon by opening with a single performance at the Times Square Theatre. The organization moved on to Springfield for one night, and will begin its run at the Selwyn Theatre on Monday. The matinee in New York had all the effect of a first night performance. A large number of regular first nighters and nearly all the newspaper critics were in the audience, and the play was received with even greater enthusiasm than at the original opening there five months ago.

Goelets Lease Newport Villa of Boston Society Matron, Betty Alden Hears

By BETTY ALDEN.

THAT popular young matron, Mrs. Harry Pratt McKean, Jr., has been suffering from an attack of grippe this week, wherewith she is receiving the condolences of her many friends.

The former Rosalie Lee, daughter of the George Lees, is known for her keen interest in all the activities along the North Shore—the McKeans are of the year-round colony at the Farms—and for her to be confined to her bed must be especially trying. Mrs. McKean is a tall brunette, resembling not a little her youngest sister, Miss Florence Lee, who has been in England for about a year. Which reminds me that her mater, Mrs. George Lee, also of Beverly Farms, plans to join her daughter sometime this Spring.

Florence Lee is thoroughly devoted to art, so much so that her parents had the top floor of their place at the Farms fixed up as a studio for her. Besides Mrs McKean, Jr., she has two other sisters, Mrs. Arthur Adams (Margery Lee Sargent) and Mrs. Huntington W. Frothingham (Marie Lee Turner).

MISS ALICE THORNDIKE is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ahl, also of Boston, at "Nautilus Cottage," their Palm Beach villa. The other day Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Whitman gave a luncheon for the Ahls and Miss Thorndike.

I NOTE that Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames of Boston has leased her Newport place for the coming season to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet of New York. There is also considerable interest in the news that Mr. Goelet's mother, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, plans to return from abroad this Spring and open "Ochre Court," her magnificent Newport estate. As Mrs. Goelet hasn't visited the famous Rhode Island watering-place for several seasons, and as she is one of Gotham society's most important figures, this news is of especial interest. There are few who doubt Mrs. Goelet's intention to give a number of all-important entertainments at "Ochre Court," once the scene of many festivities.

WILLIAM DUANE, JR., of Boston, has arrived in Newport for a visit at the Laforge Cottage.

THE mid-winter costume dance of the Harvard Hasty Pudding Club must come as balm to the hearts of the younger set—especially the debs—for the social season has come more or less to its end. The keenly anticipated terpsichorean event is planned for Friday evening, March 16, the arrangements in the hands of Bernard S. Cogan and James J. Reynolds.

THE Speaker of the House and Mrs. Frederick Gillett (Christine Hoar Rice) entertained a dinner party of fifty young people the other night at their Washington home before going on to the monthly meeting of the Dancing Class at the Playhouse. Their guests were chiefly friends of Mrs. Gillett's younger daughter, Miss Louisa Hoar, formerly of Boston and a member of the Chilton and Vincent Clubs here.

MISS ISABELLE KEMP, daughter of Mrs. Hollis Hunnewell of Boston, was among the guests at the dance given by Eugene Van Rensselaer Thayer, formerly of Boston, for his debutante cousin, Miss Cornelia T. Livingston. The latter is a niece of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer of Boston.

Others present at the dance besides Miss Kemp—who has lived most of her life abroad—were the Misses Cornelia V. Robb, Cathleen Vanderbilt and Ellin Mackay, as well as Harry Cushing, 3rd, William H. Vanderbilt and Amory L. Haskell. The affair was held at Mr. Thayer's apartment on Park avenue.

Miss Louise Page, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Page, who sailed abroad recently to study art, is shown here as she appeared at a recent charity affair given by society folk.

STUDIO NOTES

Lois Wilson's sister, Constance, is one of those rare persons who broke into the movies unintentionally. Lois took her to Utah to be a companion in expected loneliness while "The Covered Wagon" was being filmed as a Paramount picture, and James Cruze liked her so well that he made her a member of the cast.

Marie Prevost, after spending several years in Hollywood, is expected to arrive in New York within the near future. She recently completed playing the leading roles in "The Beautiful and Damned."

* * *

To Sam deGrasse goes the distinction of being the only actor who ever appeared in the pulpit of the famed century-old San Gabriel Mission near Los Angeles. And he preached a good sermon, too, while the cameras ground out the only motion picture scene ever taken within the pious walls. The scene is the finale of "Slippy McGee."

Bright Spots in Shadowland

VICTOR HERMAN, director of "Rupert of Hentzau," has just been signed to direct Constance Talmadge productions starting with April 1. Mr. Herman's first picture for Miss Talmadge will be a story by John Emerson and Anita Loos, as yet unnamed. It will be a costume story dealing with the life of Napoleon, in which Constance is to have the role of a little milliner. Mr. Emerson and Miss Loos returned to New York this week from Hollywood.

NO DOUBLE FOR HER

MARION DAVIES refused to let have a "double" for the whipping scene in her Cosmopolitan picture "Little Old New York" upon which she is now working and as a result got some ugly welts across her shoulders. The whip was wielded by powerful Louis Wolheim of "Hairy Ape" fame. Miss Davies plays the part of plucky little Patricia O'Day, the Irish girl who assumed the disguise of a boy in order to inherit a fortune.

STILL HAS LETTER.

LEO CARRILLO, who has created an eminence all his own in stage stardom by his Italian characterizations and who is back on Broadway again in "Mike Angelo," still carries a letter of introduction to Oliver Morosco. The letter was dated several years ago when Carrillo left vaudeville to seek fame in the legitimate. But Carrillo obtained a part in a new Morosco production without having to use the letter. A year later he had become a Morosco star in "Lombardi, Ltmtd." "Some day, if I ever need it, I am going to show that letter to Mr. Morosco," Carrillo says. "The letter says that I am a promising young man and worthy of a trial."

ONCE IN "FOLLIES."

KATHLENE MARTYN for several years one of the most noted of the Ziegfeld Follies beauties, has been signed to play in All Star comedies. Miss Martyn is now at work on "Beware of the Dog," with Ray McKee and Charlie Murray.

FLYNN PREDICTS COMING CRIME WAVE

Watch out for a seasonal crime wave, warns William J. Flynn, former chief of the United States secret service, who is in Boston on private business.

"Crooks hibernate in the big cities during the Winter," he explains. "When Spring comes and they can make trips on freight trains and operate in the country they plan a get away touch before leaving Winter quarters. This explains the crime epidemic reported each Spring."

A great increase in counterfeiting the chief blames on the boom in the bootlegging industry. Rum smugglers now demand payment in gold, he says, because the custom of paying them in counterfeit money became so general. Of course the victim has no recourse in law.

13,448,299 TONS OF COAL WERE SHIPPED TO CANADA LAST YEAR

THOUSANDS MORE ARE ON WAY

coal on the New Haven scores of men are sitting around doing nothing and all because there is an insufficient of motive power.

Crews sit around the yards for eight and nine hours awaiting engines after being summoned to take out trains.

And when they get the engines they find generally that they are but makeshifts.

Trainmen at Maybrook tell strange stories of their experiences in running freight from Maybrook and their accounts are in no way complimentary to the New Haven road.

From Maybrook to Danbury is seventy-five miles. When the road was running normally a freight train would occupy from three and a half hours to five to complete the journey.

ROUND HOUSES FULL.

It is not unusual now, according to the railroad men, to consume sixteen hours on the run.

After Danbury it is the same thing over again, the trainmen say.

All along the line coal are broken down engines and equipment. Disabled locomotives can be found in every roundhouse and repair shop.

There were 932 cars of coal standing on the Maybrook siding when the writer arrived there. According to H. A. Moynihan, the assistant superintendent of that section of the road, there was but little of it that had been there more than forty-eight hours.

Of these 932 cars, 242 were destined for Massachusetts, 102 for Rhode Island, 538 for Connecticut and eighty-three for New York State.

917 CARS WAITING.

Putting every ounce of effort into moving coal during the past three months the New Haven has been able to ship out of Maybrook only 2,315 cars in November, 2,081 in December and 2,765 in January.

But this is not enough. The railroad officials say it is more than they ever moved before in a three months' period. That's true, but during that time it moved practically no general freight.

On every one of the Western roads which feed the New Haven at Maybrook are thousands of tons of coal waiting for the New Haven to clear its tracks.

The Lehigh & Hudson has 510 cars tied up on its sidings within a twenty-four hours' run of Maybrook, the Lehigh & New England has 100, the Ontario & Western has 102 and the Erie railroad has 204.

TRAINS TURNED BACK.

Crews have brought trains loaded with coal into Maybrook within the past few weeks to find no room to put the cars and they have been forced to put back with their freight.

At the mines, according to reports, coal that should be coming into New England is being taken to other sections because of the inability of the New Haven to receive it.

In the Maybrook yards the Boston American representatives found miles and miles of stalled freight cars. Hidden among the box cars were the coal trains.

There are hundreds of big "battleship" cars, holding up to eighty tons of fuel each. Twenty-eight of these cars, the writer found, were destined for Boston.

There were twelve for Springfield, six for Worcester, eleven for Lowell, two for Quincy. Among the other towns and cities in Massachusetts whose cars are "in transit" are Concord, Randolph, Roxbury, Brockton, Walpole, Southbridge, Winslow North Abington, Allerton, South Braintree, Campello, Hyannis, North Dighton, Sudbury, Easton, Needham, Fitchburg, Dorchester, Bridgewater, Clinton, Newbern, Plymouth, West Roxbury, Dedham, South Boston, Northampton and New Bedford.

An Old King Coal Tune to Try in Empty Bin

Here are more statistics to try in your coal bin. They come from General Manager G. L. Bardo of the New Haven road.

He says in January this year the road moved 20,067 cars of coal, 11,348 of bituminous and 8,719 of anthracite, as against a total of 13,533 for the month of January last year. Substantially all coal delivered to the New Haven has been delivered, he said, "and the talk of coal in yards undelivered is not substantiated by the facts."

He made this statement a short time before the Boston American found 150,000 tons of coal tied up in 982 cars on sidings and gateway terminals of the New Haven road. The American refers Mr. Bardo to the coal story and pictures in today's American. (Also perhaps tomorrow's editions will interest him.)

Some of Your Coal in Bins at Phelan's Home

grade. An analysis of some of the specimens by an expert of the Massachusetts Wharf Coal Company shows it to be of the very finest grade anthracite in the various sizes. As far as he could judge, it appeared to be Lehigh coal.

Just as the American used the camera to prove to its readers that hundreds of cars loaded with coal consigned to New England were lying sidetracked in freight yards, so the camera (which never lies) is now used to show that Mr. Phelan has some coal saved up for a windy day.

There are six servants, it is said, in the Phelan household.

Pea, egg, buckwheat and stove,
Makes your parlor a Summer grove.

Mr. Phelan is a director in one of the largest soft coal corporations in the country. But he uses no soft coal, as many of his neighbors are forced to. He uses anthracite only, four kinds—pea, egg, buckwheat and stove. He even has caused to be posted on the bins a sheet of instructions, for the benefit of the half-dozen Phelan servitors.

The rules read:

Keep the live fire in the front part of fire box.

Shove the fresh coal to rear of furnace, keeping heighth of coal bed higher in rear than front.

When stoking fire do so carefully. Shake only until red glow appears in ash pit.

Use poker to break ashes if necessary. Always poke if possible from underneath.

It will be found entirely practicable to place in the fire box a sheet iron plate, punched with half-inch holes. This will allow the fire ashes to drop through and permit the regular shaking of the fire box without affecting the fire. This sort of plate is inexpensive and can readily be replaced when destroyed.

As in the case of draft regulations, with the use of any kind of coal, each furnace installation requires different treatment. By a little experimenting, the proper method can readily be determined.

Always keep the ash pit cleared.

There are the rules in the Phelan cellar, applying to the Phelan coal in the Phelan bins. Heed them. They are good rules. All you need in order to practice them is coal.

In his sheet of instructions the Fuel Administrator neglected to cover that vital point.

Buckwheat, stove, egg and pea,
That's the way to keep warm, you see.

EVEN LODGE IS AFTER COAL EMBARGO

Resolutions adopted by the Medford Board of Aldermen for passage of a bill in Congress to prevent shipment of United States coal to Canada are endorsed by Senator Lodge and Congressmen Robert S. Maloney, A. Piatt Andrew and Frederick W. Dallinger of the Massachusetts delegation.

Friendly attitude toward the resolutions is indicated in replies received from other members of the Bay State delegation by City Clerk Winslow of Medford. Every Massachusetts Senator and Congressman has been sent a copy of the resolutions.

Senator Lodge's reply said, in part, he would be glad to present the Medford resolutions to the Senate and added:

"The American needs should be first supplied and I entirely sympathize with your views. I have been doing all in my power to assist in remedying the coal situation in Massachusetts."

Congressman Maloney replied: "If the matter in which you express an interest should be presented to Congress for a vote before this session adjourns, I shall be pleased to support it."

Congressman Dallinger will "be pleased to vote for such legislation if favorably reported by the House Committee to which it was referred."

Congressman Dallinger replied: "I have been in favor of an embargo on the export of coal to various countries in times of scarcity in this country. I shall continue to work for such a policy on the part of our government."

Town Sells Coal to 10,000 on Doctors' Prescriptions

Claremont, N. H., Feb. 8.—If you want it bad enough—if you're GOT to have it—you can get some on a doctor's prescription in this town. And that's the only way you can get it.

No, not hootch. Coal. There are only forty tons of coal in the bins of local dealers, to meet the needs of 10,000 people. And the precious stuff is being doled out in small orders, largely on prescriptions from physicians in cases of emergency and sickness.

Coal dealers report their orders hopelessly sidetracked. The temperature has been averaging between 30 and 40 degrees below zero.

Laugh that off, Mr. Phelan.

10 BELOW ZERO IN MIDDLESEX TOWNS

Below zero temperatures marking the second coldest days of the Winter were reported today from Middlesex County. An official reading of ten below was reported from Concord shortly before 6 o'clock, although at 10 o'clock the mercury had risen to nineteen above, a jump of twenty-nine degrees in four hours.

Other low marks reported were: Bedford, eight below; Lincoln, eight below; Lexington, five below; West Acton, two below; and Arlington Heights, zero.

Warmer and unsettled, but generally fair, weather is predicted today for tonight and Friday. Winds will be fresh southwest to west.

A disturbance is centred over the Great Lake region, causing local snows as far east as the St. Lawrence Valley.

It was warmer today in Eastern Canada and New England. White River, Ont., which yesterday shivered at 30 below zero, was today glowing at a temperature of 23 above, a rise of 52 degrees in twenty-four hours.

The coldest record in the United States today was 6 below zero, at Greenville, Me., and Northfield, Vt. Tomorrow will be warmer until late in the day, when the temperature will drop slightly, making Saturday fair and cool, according to Forecaster Smith.

COAL EMBARGO DEMANDED BY WALSH

By SENATOR DAVID I. WALSH
OF MASSACHUSETTS
Written for Cosmopolitan News Service.

Washington, Feb. 8.—I cannot understand why the Interstate Commerce Commission does NOT take some action embargoing coal being shipped into Canada. On January 24 I propounded to them through a Senate resolution various questions, pointing out that the commission has the authority. No reply has as yet been sent to the Senate.

Unless received within a few days, I shall make request for immediate reply.

I do NOT wish to prejudge the Interstate Commerce Commission but it does seem to me the emergency act passed last September gave them ample authority to protect our people against the exportation of coal to foreign countries for which they were suffering.

I have sent to the Interstate Commerce Commission copies of the daily the freight congestion of coal at Mechanicsville and Rotterdam.

If we do NOT get some action at once, the people of New England should appeal to the president who appoints members of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

With the coal famine causing discomfort and suffering to our people, it is almost unbelievable that our government should have permitted such large shipments of anthracite coal to Canada during past weeks, yet facts indicate that shipments are still being made.

It looks as if it is more important for the coal operators to maintain their Canadian customers than it is for our government to protect the health and lives of our citizens.

The coal mess continues to be a terrible indictment of the capacity of our government to protect the well-being of our people.

Not the stupidity of the government... but the patience of the people astounds me.

EXPRESSMAN FINDS WAY TO GET COAL

George Mellow, a Lynn restaurant worker, ordered a ton of coal. He was told he could have it but must provide transportation. He engaged an expressman who refused to accept money in advance and insisted that he receive his compensation after the coal had been delivered. Mellow was told by the dealer that the expressman loaded the coal on his wagon and started for Mellow's house, but Mellow is still awaiting it.

TWO TICKLER COILS IN RADIO WRINKLE

A double tickler-coil regenerative receiver which is said to give louder signals and less distortion than the standard regenerative hook-up is offered in the free vacuum tube contest by William E. Merriam of Wallingford, Ct., (3-CEE).

Coil L1 (figure 2) has 35 turns, tapped every fifth turn. Coils L2 and L3 have 12 turns each. Condenser C1 has 43 plates (.001 mfd). The rest of the circuit is the same as in the standard hook-up.

To construct the coils:

Draw a circle of 1¾ inches diameter on a four by four-inch board. Remove the heads from a few nails and drive the nails around the circumference of the circle. Wind the required number of turns with No 24 enamel covered copper wire. When finished, lift the coil from the form and bind it with string.

INGENIOUS DEVICE.

The problem of making a vacuum tube that can be operated with the alternating current that is usually supplied in homes may be solved by an ingenious device recently invented.

When alternating current is used to heat the filaments of the tubes of present design, the A. C. current becomes part of the receiver circuit and the 60-cycle hum is heard in telephones.

The new tube uses 5.5 volts and consumes .33 amperes for heating the filament. The filament is encased in what is called a refractory tube, covered with a nickeled sleeve coated with oxides.

CUTS VOLTAGE.

The filament is thus used merely to heat the nickel sleeve. The oxide coating increases the emission of electrons, which are thrown out as soon as the sleeve is heated by the filament.

The circuit to the coupler and plate is made through the sleeve, so that there is no electrical connection with the heating device. An ordinary transformer of the bell ringing type is used to step down from the 110 volts house current to the required 5.5 volts for the heating element.

PREDICT DEBT RATIFICATION IN 10 DAYS

(By International News Service.)

Washington, Feb. 8.—Congressional ratification within ten days of the Anglo-American agreement for refunding the $4,600,000,000 British war debt was the aim of administration leaders today as a result of President Harding's appeal for early action.

[illegible] Democratic leader, [illegible] conference with the President, declared there was unanimous sentiment in favor of the agreement, and that he would call a meeting of the Democratic members of the House ways and means committee for tomorrow to consider the terms of the settlement.

In the House there was every indication that the measure would be passed without serious opposition and without prolonged debate. In the Senate, however, there was a growing feeling of opposition among members of the farm bloc and from a faction of Democrats.

The debt bill sponsored in the House by Representative Burton, of Ohio, one of the American commissioners who negotiated the agreement, will pass [illegible] at the end of the week or early next week, it was said.

MAY ACT TODAY

While administration leaders expect to get the measure providing for ratification of the agreement through the House by Friday, it is thought the bill will be held up in the Senate by Senator Smoot of Utah and a delay of a week or more is expected.

The house Finance committee met today at the call of Chairman McCumber of North Dakota and was to take up the bill at the noon session. The plan was to report the bill to the senate without recommendation, leaving it to Senator McCumber, when the measure is called up for consideration, to offer the amendments which he has prepared. These, it is understood, will be identical in terms with the Burton bill which has already passed the House.

While administration leaders expect no opposition to the agreement in the report from the Democratic members of both House and Senate there will be strong opposition from Republican Senators, Senators McKellar, of Tennessee, and Heflin, of Alabama, leading Democrats stated today they would fight the settlement on a finish.

"FARM BLOC" LUKEWARM.

Members of the senate "farm bloc" were lukewarm in their opinion of the senate report. Senator Capper, of Kansas, chairman of the [illegible] Ladd, of North Dakota, and Norris, of Nebraska, announced they had not yet reached a decision on whether they should support it.

Senator Brookhart, other opponents of the agreement, are shopping [illegible] the senate report.

A strenuous effort will be made [illegible] these days to force the senate to act on it, and if it does take a vote it is [illegible] then Administration leaders [illegible] agree to drop [illegible] favor of the [illegible] settlement.

FARMER'S PROFIT CUT 30 PER CENT.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Agricultural production has a gross farm value of $14,810,000,000 for 1922 compared with $22,400,000,000 in 1921 the Department of Agriculture announced today. The decrease was in crops alone, animal products showing a decrease.

The 1922 crop value was 46 per cent lower than in 1919, but the purchasing power in terms of other products was but 30 per cent lower in 1922 than in 1919, the purchasing power was 16 per cent lower than the pre-war year.

THEY CALLED HIM AN "OLD PILL"

THAT was years ago when he packed a terrible grouch, a mighty irritable stomach and a liver that refused to do the things that all good livers should. No wonder his friends called him an "old pill" and stayed away.

But that was years ago—long before he discovered Beecham's Pills and learned that two at bedtime can bring sunshine into a man's life. Today, he's an optimist, a hero to his wife, and a staunch believer in Beecham's Pills.

The cheer that Beecham's Pills bring into a man's disposition, is the incomparable cheer of sound digestion, active liver, and the regular habits that make good health.

THIS LITTLE BABY GIRL

Was Benefited by the Good Her Mother Got from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my little girl was born, and the effect it had was wonderful. This will be the first child I have nursed as I had to bring my two boys up on the bottle. I was very nervous and worried, tired all the time and after I read about the Vegetable Compound I tried it and kept on with it. I still continue its use and recommend it to my friends. You may publish these facts as a testimonial for your medicine."—Mrs. WM. KLINGE, 169 Plymouth S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after the birth of the child, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs.

WARN AGAINST KISS AS FLU SPREADS

Sent Pauline Frederick Love Notes by Wire

"HANDY BAGS" USEFUL TO KIDDIES

IDEAL FOR LUNCHES

"Better than a bag full o' tricks." That's the verdict of these kute kiddies of the Wendell Phillips School. Boston's new Handy Bag—which the Boston American is offering its readers at a small part of its real cost—is a favorite of the school youngsters. They find it ideal to carry their lunches and school books. It has a thousand uses suited for every member of the family.

The Handy Bag—Boston's new all-around bag—is here! Everybody can carry one Little Johnny can carry his schoo books in one; sister May can use it as a smart handbag, and mother can go shopping with it. Even dad can fold it up nicely in his pocket as I bring home the Sunday dinner.

The Boston American has obtained a limited supply of these Handy Bags and is going to give its readers an opportunity to get one. Just clip three coupons from the Boston American on successive days and present them, with thirty-three cents, at the first floor of the Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, and get yours. First coupon appears today. Clip it now!

The bags are fashioned of leatherette and look like expensive imported bags. They will wear like iron. It's an air of smartness hasn't been overlooked in designing them.

Carry it on your arm like any handbag. Pull out a little flap and you have a full sized shopping bag. Its uses are numberless.

Don't forget, three consecutive coupons and thirty-three cents. If you can't send in all three at once, also five cents extra. This is absolutely necessary to insure safe delivery of your bag.

HANDY BAG COUPON
No. 1 Clip It Now!

Present this coupon with two others clipped from the Boston American on consecutive days, with 33 cents, at the first floor of the Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, and receive one of Boston's New Handy Bags.

(Note—If you want it sent by mail send 5 cents extra. Address Handy Bag Dept., Boston American.)

DANGER OF FLU IN KISSES

44-Hour Malady Also Spread by Coughing, Health Board Warns

The "forty-hour flu" has struck Boston.

Keep away from your friend who is continually coughing and sneezing; he or she may have it.

Don't note to overdo street cars the germ may be lurking are.

SHUN KISSING.

Don't talk loud so as to ex pectorate in the face of your listener. It may be inco

And above all, don't kiss your sweetheart—lay off for a week or so.

According to a statement of Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, Health Commissioner, there has been present this Winter a mild and rather case of sickness which, in past years, would have been called colds but what the Mayor referred to as the "forty-hour flu."

Dr. F. X. Mahoney

Health, if the city employes have been treated largely to the aged—persons in a general debilitated condition. But many persons have felt pretty sick for a short time and various complications, including pneumonia, have not been uncommon.

GERMS EXCHANGED.

While the Health Department admits that it does not know as much about the factors which cause the "forty-hour flu" or a bad cold, for that matter, as it would like to, it does know, however, enough about them to say that such infections of the nose, throat or lungs prevail every Winter under some name or other because of the people who indulge in doing certain things which are conducive to the spread of germs from one person to another.

Such things as coughing, sneezing, and kissing are among the principal ways by which colds are spread from the mouths or noses of persons.

HEALTH WARNING.

So, accordingly, the Health Commissioner has issued the following warning:

Here are some of the ways in which people swap each others disease producing germs:

Coughing into the air or private conversation, and then breathing it by others.

Using the hand to shake hands with, and then using the hand to handle bread or candy, for example, which somebody else eats, or using the hand to shake hands with some lady who then uses his own contaminated hand to feed himself. The same thing can be accomplished even more efficiently by coughing or talking over food that is going to be eaten by other people.

"Upon what has just been said it may be inferred that municipal health officials are not going to accomplish much in the way of the control of these colds or "forty hour flu." The people themselves are willing to change some of their careless habits and most of them are willing to do so.

The death total from January 1 1923 to February 3, is as follows: Lobar pneumonia, 182; bronchopneumonia, 146; influenza, 33

WORLD WAR ON DOPE URGED

Dr. Van Dyke Demands More Effective Methods to Save Young People From Evil

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 8. The drug curse is an evil which every year is taking from us a toll of human life probably as large as the number of our soldiers who fell in the World War.

In addition to this it is wrecking and ruining, crippling and debauching hundreds of thousands of lives, especially among the young. It is producing crimes of violence, probably more than any other cause.

Any police magistrate will tell you that a large proportion of the assaults, highway robberies, larcenies and holdups which come before him for judgment are committed by drug addicts.

Dr. Van Dyke

Every week the newspapers tell us of the suicide of a dozen of these unhappy boys and girls.

Our school children are being debauched by drug pedlars. It is time to do something more effective to prevent this dreadful evil.

FLYWEIGHT CHAMPION RISKS TITLE AT ARENA CLUBS SHOW

PANCHO VILLA MEETS FRANKIE MASON

By JACK CONWAY.

Pancho Pancho Villa, who claims the American flyweight championship will have Jimmy Wilde as an opponent in a bout which will be staged in New York early next Summer provided he can keep on winning.

Frankie Mason

Tex Rickard already has Wilde's contract in his possession. Rickard's agreement with Wilde calls for a tussle with Villa or Frankie Genaro.

Villa is confident he will be the one to oppose Wilde. He points to the fact that he knocked out Johnny Buff, while he has won decisions over Abe Attell, Goldstein, Young Montreal, Danny Edwards and other blue-ribbon steppers.

The sensational little Filipino will resume ring campaigning next Tuesday night when he clashes with Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne, Ind., in a ten-round bout at the Arena A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building.

It will be the first time that Villa has been led a flyweight in a fast ring. The slap-happy little fighter has always been obliged to give away a pound in order to get bouts.

It will be a new experience for Mason, who is primarily a Bantamweight. He only scales 112 pounds, but has done most of his fighting at 116 pounds. It will be remembered that he gave Young Montreal a rather interesting time a few weeks ago.

Both Claim the American Flyweight Championship

Villa and Mason both claim the American flyweight championship. Tod Sloan, who is said to know a lot about boxing, has picked Mason after fifteen rounds of fighting.

Making out a decision does not, however, that Buff has a decision over him, but he says that it was a 116 pounds and Jerome should be a few pounds heavier. He picks up his decision on the basis of agreement for Mason that the weight was to be 116 pounds.

If Villa wins over Mason he will engage in one or two more contests and then take on Frankie Genaro in a contest which will be staged in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Genaro Is the Young Man Who Upset Martin

Genaro is the young man who recently defeated Pete Herman, Johnny Dundee, Terry McGovern, Johnny Kilbane and Joe Lynch. Genaro is a boy from Texas and he has been fighting around New York for the past two years. He is a clever boxer and has been matched with Jimmy Wilde, but the latter refused to sign articles. Genaro has also defeated Jack Sharkey, who was considered a rising star in the lightweight division.

Genaro is a rule a favorite over Mason. It is the idea of ring experts that it is possible that the Hoosier will be able to stop the Filipino and her could easily do so.

The match is attracting much interest and there is a big demand for reserved seats at the Arena, 349 Main street.

Young Manty Will Oppose Mickey Travers

It is a fact that Jack Sharkey will meet Mickey Travers in the Young Manty-Jack Bellord opponent in a ten-round bout at the Arena A. C. next Monday night. Sharkey will be forced and does not appear to experience a great deal of trouble over the toughest kind of opposition.

Johnny Dundee and Tony Julian will probably battle in a return bout during the latter part of the month. Julian has already signed for a second meeting with the Scotch Wop.

Pete Latzo, who won over Paul Doyle, wants a shot at Eddie Shea. Shea, of course, is the champion. Shea is outpointed Latzo in their last bout. Latzo is a fighter of the aggressive type and has been matched with Jack Bernstein next week.

You have no doubt read that there are more ten-thousand-dollar jobs than there are ten-thousand men to fill them. You don't fall, so it, and neither do we. But it does seem to us that a bright young man—you prove that by asking our advice—should have very little trouble catching on nowadays. This is an age of stresses and reactions and complexes in business. Psychology is the thing. Make 'em like you. Put the office of biggest concern you can find. Push office boys aside if they object knock 'em for a few goals. Use off tackle play and get past all the secretaries and things. In that manner you can easily get interview with president, also police.

This will undoubtedly accomplish your ending. The boss will be impressed. You will have him completely buffaloed. His reactions will be loud and sacred. Even if he doesn't give you a job, he will recommend you highly—to the janitor's commission. Simple enough, isn't it?

TRY TO HIT IT
(Dedicated to the Day's Best Offering)

IT happened on the New York force, where they are not so keen on orthography as are the Boston officers. He was a newly-appointed policeman, and on his first night on duty was late in reporting. A search squad found him hauling a dead horse down a side street, assisted by a few of the corner regulars. "What's the big idea?" asked one of the rescuers.

"Well, you see," said our hero, "this horse broke his leg and I had to shoot him."

"But, why drag him down here?"

"Oh, I shot him on Lafayette street, and I couldn't spell that, so I'm dragging him down to Monroe. I can spell that for my report."

RING ENGAGEMENTS OR VICE VERSA.

JACK DEMPSEY and Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Match called by Dame Rumor. One round, no decision. Up to time engagement was reported, Jack was only notables on two continents who had not been engaged to Peggy.

Jack Dempsey and Bebe Daniels. Looked like finish match until both parties, expressing great mutual regards, made denials.

Jack Dempsey and Sylvia Joslyn. The couple had actually started fighting—gone on their honeymoon—according to report, but it was fake.

Jack Dempsey and Bee Palmer. This was most authentic match of all. Went so far as suit for alienation of affections brought by Bee's spouse, but no decision.

Marrying off Jack seems as tough a job as finding opponent for him. Rumored now along Broadway that Jack With Million Dollar Fists is more than casually interested in Girl with $10,000 Eyes—Muriel Hering. Generally believed Jack will offer to make her Hot Lady of the Land.

Athletics Release Young

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 8.—"Pep" Young, infielder of the Athletics, received notice from Manager Connie Mack of his unconditional release. Young came to the Athletics last year from Detroit.

VICTORIES GO TO EAGLES AND UNICORNS

Seldom have the local hockey fans been treated to such a feast of hockey. The B. A. A. team defeated Harvard, 2 to 1, and Boston College turned back Boston University, 7 to 2, in a double bill which has everyone talking.

The Arena was jammed to the very doors when the ice battles got under way.

All through the evening the spectators were thrilled with the spectacular and brilliant playing of the four teams.

As was expected the Maroon and Gold septet proved to be a much tabler hockey team with Cullnane back in his usual form on the forward line with Foley and Hughes. This trio proved to be the stumbling block of the Lions.

Foley got two goals and Culnane managed to snap in three sweet ones. The other scores netted by the Maroon and Gold were garnered by the Morrissey brothers.

Boston University scored their goals in the last period and the counting men were Almer and Sterling.

Bauchman, who played goal for Boston University, displayed his usual fine game.

The B. A. A. team drew first blood in their battle with the boys from across the Charles, and the first score came in the first period after a couple of minutes of play. Smith breezed out front and drove the puck by Bigelow, who is accredited with being about the best college goalie in many a moon.

Bigelow stopped more rubber discs than ever before in his young life. He was lucky to get away clean, as time and again the Back Bay club outfit slashed them at him from all corners.

George Owen showed Small and Geran, not to forget the others, that both on the defence and offence he is a wonder.

JESS WILLARD AGREES TO FIGHT JOHNSON

By THOMAS L. CUMMISKEY.

New York, Feb. 8.—Jess Willard will meet Floyd Johnson, the Iowan sensation, at the Yankee Stadium on May 12. The fight will be for the New York milk fund of the Mayor's committee, headed by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, and is sponsored by Chairman William Muldoon of the Boxing Commission.

Tex Rickard will promote the bout, giving his services for nothing, or rather for the good of the cause — the poor of the city.

Colonels Jacob Ruppert and T. L. Huston, owners of the New York American League club, tender the use of their great new park, which it is estimated, will seat 80,000 persons.

The "gate" has been conservatively placed at $2,0,000 as the lowest by expert judges of the event.

Barred by New York and the New Jersey Boxing Commissions from a fight with Champion Dempsey, unless he first met some other fighter and proved his physical condition for a championship battle, Willard steadfastly refused to tackle anyone but Dempsey until, with the out look of a Dempsey bout, for a chance at regaining his old title, decidedly dismal, Willard finally capitulated.

Johnson has come along like a prairie fire since he arrived here from the West some months ago. He scored ten knockouts in eleven fights, and in the other bout of the eleven, he decisively whipped Bill Brennan, the ragey veteran. Johnson's biggest affair was against Brennan.

Jack Kearns was only too eager to say he'd be glad to accommodate the winner with a bout with Champion Dempsey. In fact, he advised Willard to take on Johnson. Such a bout, and a victory, is the only chance Jess has of meeting his conqueror again. The bars are up pretty much everywhere that a big "gate" could be obtained.

Chairman Muldoon of the Boxing Commission, which claims Willard is forty and not thirty-six, as Jess has claimed, waived the ruling barring men at the age limit of thirty-eight, "because of the worthy cause," and stated "it was worth abrogating a more rule temporarily at least."

He further said the commission did not wish to appear unfair to Willard, and that the bout with Johnson will give Willard every opportunity to prove his sincerity that "he is not merely seeking the town's end of a purse in a fight with Dempsey."

ARENA BILLS THE NEW HAVEN SIX SATURDAY

The reorganized New Haven Hockey Club will play in a United States League game with the Victorias at the Arena Saturday night.

The recent unpleasantness, in which the New Haven players were innocent victims, has attracted a host of friends to Norman Shay and his teammates.

Shay, Shorty Veno, Wilfred Veno and Herb Holmes, the goalie; George Walker, former Harvard captain and defence man; Roger Buntin, a brilliant centre ice dribbler, and Dick Townsend a wing.

Those players were members of the Westminsters and fans recall some of the great battles they staged with Pere Marquette. Former Pere Marquette players are in the Victoria lineup. With Raymie Skilton with the Vicks, hockey fans are assured of a lively evening.

To add to good measure Manager Brown will send Harvard against St. Nicholas. Four former Harvard stars in the St. Nick lineup are Jabbo Holmes, the goalie; George Walker, former Harvard captain and defence man; Roger Buntin, a brilliant centre ice dribbler, and Dick Townsend a wing.

Boston College, victorious over McGill University and the Victorias, is due for a bump Monday night when it will tackle Queen's University of Kingston, Ont.

Queen's is now sharing a top tie with Toronto University in the Canadian Intercollegiate League series. Queen's took the measure of the University of Montreal, 10 to 0. This is some setback when one considers that Tom Dobiens, who has been seen here with Montreal and La Toque teams, plays for the University of Montreal.

In the other half of the bill the Victorias will play St. Nicholas in the United States League series.

Queen's will come here well loaded with power. The full squad will make the trip. After the Boston College game the Canadians will rest for the Harvard game Wednesday.

"DEL" PRATT LOSES HIS RED SOX "SUIT"

Chicago, Feb. 8.—A $1,000 claim by Derrill Pratt of Detroit against the Red Sox was denied by Baseball Commissioner Landis. Pratt, who was traded to the Tigers by the Red Sox, claimed he had a verbal agreement with the Boston management to receive that amount for signing his contract for 1921 and 1922. The club denied this agreement.

MATCH LEONARD WITH WHITE ON JULY 4

New York, Feb. 8.—Benny Leonard, the lightweight champion, will risk his crown in a battle with Charley White at New York on Boyle's 30 Acres, Jersey City, on or about July 4.

Manager Billy Gibson says that Tex Rickards offer for Leonard's services were satisfactory, and that the offer made to White was also satisfactory to Charley.

"We have not signed articles of agreement as yet," Gibson said. "White must meet and beat Rocky Kansas in their bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night. If he does I can see no hitch. The fight will take place."

The date of the fight will be some time early in the Summer, probably around July 4.

Gibson was asked if Leonard intended to retire after two more fights.

"No, I don't think so," he said. "In fact, Leonard is planning quite a few fights this Summer. We have had several good offers that we are likely to accept."

He said Leonard would complete a contract as an actor at a local show in a month, at the latest, and would then begin training for a busy Summer in the ring.

SUGGS IN COURT TO GET TITLE CONTEST

New Bedford, Feb. 7.—Attorneys for "Chick" Suggs appeared before Judge Hiram Dubouze in Superior Court and filed petition for an injunction restraining Charley Manty from defending his New England featherweight boxing championship until he had first given the Newport fighter a bout as called for in an agreement signed by Manuel Costa, Manty's manager.

The petitioners filed in support of their request the contract entered into January 3, thirteen days before Suggs lost his title to Manty. A compromising petition was to the effect that David Luminsky, Suggs' manager, had designated February 19 at the Fall River Casino as the time and place of the return bout as stipulated in the agreement. Judge Dubouze ordered a hearing on the matter be held in Taunton this morning.

NO HOODOO NUMBERS FOR GOLD SKATES RACE CONTESTANTS

ALL ENTRANTS READY FOR BIG ICE DERBY

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

The GOLD SKATES contestants who will meet in the semi-final and [illegible] of Greater Boston's First Annual Ice Skating Derby—the GOLD SKATES RACES—at Jamaica Pond, Saturday afternoon, will not be called upon to wear the hoodoo" numbers—13 and 23.

Had these numbers been included in the list that have been assigned, Francis Morisi of No. 197 [illegible] avenue, Chelsea, would have drawn the 13, and Miss Ida Kolodny of No. 50 Forsyth street, Boston, would have sported the 23.

No objection to the numbers had been filed with the GOLD SKATES EDITOR, but the latter thought it best to avoid any possible kick over wearing the hoodoo numerals.

From the letters received from GOLD SKATES contestants this week, every one of their number is raring to go.

Excellent ice conditions prevailed Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, and Tuesday night's snow was quickly removed from the majority of skating surfaces, so that yesterday and today found ice conditions well nigh perfect.

This [illegible] on the GOLD SKATES [illegible] the longest stretch of good skating weather they have had this winter, and all having availed themselves of the opportunity to practice for Saturday's Jamaica Pond races, believe their chances of winning and making record time are better than ever.

Many of the 104 skaters who, by winning or placing high in the trials of January 27, qualified for next Saturday's semi-finals and finals were planning to engage in the city of Boston carnival events at Jamaica Pond this evening.

The latter carnival has no connection with the GOLD SKATES RACES but does furnish excellent [illegible] for competitive practice for those who engage in the latter, and few will care to miss Saturday's GOLD SKATES [illegible] if for no other reason than to see the graceful work of those fancy skating stars.

One feature of Saturday's GOLD SKATES [illegible] of the New Winter sports lovers will care to miss is the exhibition of fancy skating which is to feature the afternoon.

James A. Tower, vice president of the New England Skating Association, who is arranging the fancy skating exhibition, has assured the GOLD SKATES officials of the appearance of Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard, national woman figure skating champion, and of Nathaniel C. Niles, who with Mrs. Blanchard, holds the national pair skating championship. Several other of the leading fancy skaters of the land also may be included in the program.

Saturday will mark the first appearance of any of their number on a Greater Boston ice but our new [illegible] will be on hand and few will care to miss a free opportunity to see the graceful work of these fancy skating stars.

I gave the advance tip on Calza and Posek, and don't hesitate in stating that within a few months Stasiak, too, will be battling with the world's leading wrestlers. Right now he would be able to conquer some of the so-called headliners of the mat game.

"I look for him to win tonight. Kotsonaros should also secure a victory.

Italy's War Orphans Got $900 From Boxing Show

Italy's war orphans benefited, to the extent of $900, as a result of the boxing show staged by the Armory A. A.

The Triple A's Au-Star program attracted $6,200 into the box office. The show cost the club $5,300. The biggest items of expense were $1,200 paid to Paul Doyle and $1,000 paid to Pete Latzo. Tony Julian, Willie Harmon and Jimmy Murphy each got $400, while Henry Ford and Freddy Madden were paid nominal sums.

Johnny Dundon gave his services free.

Rent, transportation for boxers and managers, and the expense of attendants at the show made up the other expenditures.

Fifty per cent. of the profits of the show went to the fund for the orphans and also $100 which was collected during the bouts.

HOPPE MUST QUIT GLAD HAND HABIT

In order to save his $100,000 right arm, Willie Hoppe, world's 18.2 balk line champion had to pass up a scheduled exhibition tour, because of strained ligaments in his right shoulder made it difficult for the cue wizard to execute shots in the international tourney last Fall. A recurrence of the old trouble recently in St. Louis, in an exhibition game, caused his manager, R. B. Benjamin, to ban handshaking with hundreds of well-meaning enthusiasts.

Hoppe's shoulder trouble responded to treatment, and he is on tour.

The referee did not hesitate to award the decision to Ryan. Curtin weighed 121 pounds; Ryan weighed 119.

TUFTS TO HOLD BASKETBALL TOURNEY

C. P. Houston, graduate manager at Tufts, announces that the third annual New England basketball tournament will be held March 16 and 17.

The tourney, which is entirely an invitation affair with the representatives of the different States selected according to their success in their regular season, and the result of the various college tourneys will probably follow the plan of previous years insofar as number of teams goes and also as to the number of schools per State.

Last year Massachusetts was represented by five teams, Maine and Connecticut by three, New Hampshire and Vermont by two, and Rhode Island by one.

Other basketball tourneys will be held at Yale, New Hampshire State University of Vermont and the University of Maine but all will come at least ten days before the Tufts tourney and the players will have ample time in which to recuperate before competing for the New England title.

Brockton, the outfit which won last season's tourney at Medford leads the Suburban League and beyond all doubt will again be a dangerous contender for the title.

Northampton, the team which was the favorite to win a year ago and which lost through mistaken choice of tactics in playing a waiting game with a small lead, is burning up the league in the western part of the State. They have not been defeated.

Another team that reached the finals [illegible] is the Baldwin Vt. High [illegible] were [illegible] that [illegible] to see them registered in the coming tourney.

MIDDLESEX WINNER OF HOCKEY BATTLE

The Middlesex school hockey sextet won its fifth victory of the season and turned back the Browne and Nichols School team of Cambridge 4 to 1.

Middlesex started out in whirlwind fashion, and scored four goals in rapid succession in the opening period. Both teams displayed team work, but the Middlesex outfit proved the master of the situation at almost all stages of the encounter.

PITCHER FILLINGIM TO REDUCE WEIGHT

Dana Fillingim, right-hand pitcher of the Braves, must take off weight before he reports to Manager Mitchell at St. Petersburg.

Owner George W. Grant ordered the big pitcher to report at Hot Springs, Ark., February 15, to take the full course of twenty four baths. Extra weight proved a big handicap to Fillingim last year, and Owner Grant is anxious to have the big hurler report in shape.

WILLIE HARMON WILL FIGHT FRIEDMAN

Sailor Friedman of Chicago, one of the best welterweights in this country, has been signed to battle Willie Harmon of this city in one of the three ten-round bouts which will be staged under the direction of the Fenway A A at Mechanic's Building on Monday evening.

This match will give Harmon a real test. It will determine whether the Eddie Black entrant is a top notch warrior or merely a flash in the pan.

Harmon scored his thrilliest ninth victory when he disposed of Jimmy Murphy of Denver at the Armory Club's show the other night. Manager Joe Green says he will announce the rest of his card a few days.

ROWING RACES ON CHARLES ON JULY 4

If Springfield wants the Labor Day regatta of the N. E. A. A. it can have it, was the decision made at the annual meeting of the organization.

The Springfield delegates wanted the regular July 4 regatta, which is held annually on the Charles River. The meeting decided that as July 4 will come the middle of the week it would be difficult for Boston competitors to make the trip. Therefore the Independence Day event will take place on the Charles River as usual.

BRAVES OWNER SENDS THREE TO MINORS

President George Washington Grant realizes that the birthday of the father of his country is only two weeks away. Yesterday the owner of the Braves wrote his name on pink slips which were mailed to Johnny Roser, an outfielder obtained from the St. Petersburg club of the Florida State League; Larry Gallagher, purchased from the Norfolk club of the Virginia League, and Al Smith, repurchased from Shreveport of the Texas League.

Roser and Gallagher have been sent to the Worcester club of which Eddie Eayrs is manager. Roser is an outfielder and Gallagher a shortstop. The Boston club will have strikes on both players, but arrangements have been made so that Eayrs will conduct the Worcester club as a Boston club farm.

Smith was also cast adrift under the optional agreement plan. He goes to the New Orleans club of the Southern Association. He is a first baseman.

Bill Finneran, formerly of the National League staff and now of the American Association staff of umpires, will umpire the Braves games at St. Petersburg. Owner Grant announces that thirty-eight players will be taken to the spring training camp.

ENGLISH PLAYS LATIN IN PARK CARNIVAL

By FRED C. LANE.

Rival school teams, English High and Boston Latin, will meet in hockey match at the City of Boston ice carnival at Jamaica Pond tonight. The schedule billed them for the last day of the season, March 17, but instead the match will be a feature of the park department Jack Frost festival.

George Norton

It is one of the banner events on the splendid program arranged by the park department, and a torrid game is assured when the rival sextets take the ice. A sport conflict between teams from these schools always produces a contest worth while.

Latin at the start of the season had a very promising team. It lost to Brighton High, and since then the team has been more or less demoralized. The spirit of the team would be strong but for the fact that the players realize they should have won had two of the players reported in proper [illegible] for the contest.

[illegible] when Latin meets English [illegible] ve is always a revival of spirit. [illegible]ght's battle will be keen. English will be without the services of [illegible]s Durant, who has gone to [illegible]kton to compete in the dual [illegible]k meet between English and [illegible]kton.

Medford and Boston College High seem bent on winning the Greater Boston Interscholastic meet February 17 at the Huntington gymnasium judging from the big list sent in by both schools.

Huntington's hockey team met Belmont Tech on the Cambridge rink today. The swimming team has a stiff ordeal when it will face Andover at the Y. M. C. A. pool in Lawrence on Saturday. The track team will cross [illegible] trouble on the week-end against Worcester Academy on the "Y" track.

Rhyming Optimist

GEE! It's great to hear the nations putting out their fine orations, telling all about the debts they should not pay; some of them would like to borrow several millions more tomorrow, but they never speak about a reckoning day. Oh, they put their cash in powder dust to shoot folks into chowder; there are lands that never quit that kind of stuff; but to see them, gaunt and weary, makes us feel a little leery, so we claim that all the world's bad wars enough. Though the prospects out in Turkey still may seem a trifle murky and the Bolshevik goes raging on his way, if all men would stick together they'd pull through to fairer weather and they'd make an end to turmoil, strife and fray. Uncle Sam has been the banker, but no nation seems to be keen to return the mighty sums that he has lent; though they ask him for more money they consider that it's funny he'd expect them to bring back a single cent. If the profits from our labor help some man to slay his neighbor, if our hard-earned gains must go for spreading strife, we might better far be resting than so foolishly investing in new means of taking priceless human life. If we use our strength for suction, for distress and for destruction, if we fill our boys to march to martial drums, if we find ourselves delighting in the fire-works and the fighting, then we'd better just sit still and twirl our thumbs. For to such deeds so foolish, so preposterous and mullish as the debt that man incurs in making wars we should let the warring classes get a taste of poison gases and export the fighting faction up to Mars.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

DOCTORS claim that fat to to human beings what upholstery is to furniture.

SOME fat people may be well upholstered, but most of them look over-stuffed.

WHEN a dame marries a stout man she doesn't care about the design. It's all the same to her whether he's tapestry or chintz.

SHE'S satisfied with the upholstery that nature covered him with.

IF she loves him she doesn't worry about the color scheme as long as he's the same color as she is.

FAT is also fuel and keeps the body warm, but stout guys have to wear just as many clothes as skinny fellows.

A FAT man gives out more heat than a thin one, unless he's a landlord.

HE gives out so much warmth to everybody else that he almost freezes to death himself.

BUT he's really not any warmer than you are; he only looks hotter.

HOWEVER, once in a while a fat guy gets so hot that he perspires boiling water.

ONE of these birds was so bad that when he cried he had to wipe his eyes with an asbestos handkerchief.

HE couldn't wear spectacles. His tears were so hot that they cracked his glasses.

HIS wife used to heat the baby's bottle by putting it in his mouth.

A FAT guy isn't so good in the Summer, but he comes in darned handy in the Winter.

ONE woman's husband weighed one hundred pounds and she said he was a Godsend during the coal famine.

HE had so much fat on him that he could sit in the parlor and heat the whole house.

SHE probably meant she was going to call the doctor when she said she had to get somebody to fix her furnace.

IT'S nice, girls, to be married to a fat guy so that he can keep you warm, but it's time to divorce him when he starts sunning heat to the whole neighborhood.

TIME AND TIDE

By L. M. W.

MAN is a bundle of odd kinks
For alienists to ponder,
And woman, too, a mental sphinx
To make the experts wonder;
Like Einstein, she believes that time
Is little more than fiction,
She scouts at reason, laughs at rhyme
Ignoring all restriction.
At twenty-eight she's still "sixteen,"
And we have seen a plenty
Who in the forties must have been,
But still were stalled at "twenty."
When we are young we try to make
The world believe we're older,
(But fifty is a brazen fake:
"I'm thirty-six," he told her).

Psychologists have yet to find
The complex that besets us,
And makes us want to lag behind
When tempus fugit gets us.

"Why are flanners popular?"
"Because their skirts make them look shorter and the men look longer."
Fine. Try this: It's an old one:
"What's the difference between a rich man with a couchman and a doe's tail?"
"One keeps a carriage, the other keeps a wagg'."
That was o-l. Get this one: "Why is the water at Niagara Falls so green?"
"Because it just came over."

Oh, well, our fans may like 'em. That's right. I never thought of that.

SPRING IN HER HEART

A Little Story of a Department Store and How From Bossing the Boss' Son She Soon Was Bossed Herself by a Husband

By A. M. Crawford

THE fresh west wind had in it ▲ It the blossoming breath of Springtime. Old women with [illegible] of daffodils, jonquils and violets stood or loitered along the sunny streets. In trifling pass erably with the fragrant beauty of their offerings. They, too, had once been young, so one of them smiled understandingly when Anne Emerson paused irresolutely, looked doubtful for a second, then opened her small patent leather [illegible]

"Good morning," she said confidently. "I'll have a bunch of roses today. I'll take a bunch of violets." She sniffed luxuriously at their dewy loveliness. "Sweet! Oh, if I could only pick them my self—"

"Sure and ye will some day, with somebody around to help ye!"

"I hope that's a prophecy," laughed Anne.

"I bet ye have to use a club now to keep the creatures [illegible]

For Two Years

If she only did! She had been in the city for more than two years and the only men she knew were those employed in the big department store where she had charge of ribbons and handkerchiefs.

She had not worked a year until the big boss came down from his office one day and commenting on the attractiveness of his displays and the novelties she had made out of ribbons in her odd moments, after a coolly appraising glance, said abruptly, "I'm transferring Miss Mason to the millinery. You take charge of this stock and see if you can't make it hum. It means fifty per cent. increase in your salary and a bonus."

The send and the following thereof had been hers that night.

Would she, or would she grovel in the service of the boss' son, stairs or someone like him? Would she punch time clocks for [illegible] all merchants all of the spring [illegible]?

A clerk came from the office and Anne walked up the short flight of stairs. The best-looking young man she had ever seen was sitting by the desk. He stood up when she entered. The boss said [illegible] "Miss Shannon, this is my nephew, Bob Marshall. I've taken him into partnership. Want him to learn the ropes, everything. I'm going along, too," he laughed a bit nervously.

"I want him to learn what it means to sell, then to buy, then to manage. There'll be no one in jewelry after today. You're the best-wise of young business woman in the store. So I'm asking you to take Bob off my hands and teach him the A. B. C's of the selling end of it. He'll be across the aisle from you

Charge of Buying.

"And by the way, I'm giving you charge of jewelry, too, buying and all. Whoop up the sales there as you are doing in your own department. Don't be afraid to boss Bob around. He's given full send him down on a minute."

Bob looked at Anne Shannon. Could a girl as pretty as that have such a thorough knowledge of business, his eyes seemed to ask. There was a little smile about his lips. He followed her to the door and took her hands in his. "I think we'd better arrange right now for me to go to night school—to you—so that I can learn everything as quickly as possible. It's all very well for you to boss me around for a while, but some day—who knows—I may turn the tables and make you promise to love, honor—"

From the lowest step she looked back up. He was standing where she had left him. "I've got my eye on you," he whispered. "Remember, tonight! My first lesson! Not in ribbons, though they may come in appropriately later on. Jewelry first!" He touched the third finger of his left hand.

Strawberries in blue rimmed dishes for somebody dearer than all else besides. And into her heart like the flush in her cheeks there came the first warm glow of love just like the faint pink of the azaleas flower heralds the coming of Spring

WHAT a wealth of wondrous adventure one day may hold—particularly when one is in love! Jolly Mr. Sun seems to send a most special beam to seek out his picture, so his face, framed in the glory of dawn, may be the first thing she beholds when she wakes.

All day long she carries his vision in her heart—why, even the soda clerk who serves her luncheonette at noon sees out of the corner of his eyes, which never leave hers, the aura of her love to HER eyes, even as she—innocent—looks at him.

And then, best hours of all to her, are the moments of purest melody, when in his arms she dances among a throng and sees—sees only him—and with feet trotting to the orchestra's music, her HEART hears only the melody of HIS voice. POPINI

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

The Dinner at Betty's Apartments Results in the Considering of What to Do With Her—Shall She Go to Work?

By Ann Lisle

"AND I'm a brute," murmured Betty, sounding something like her self in spite of the [illegible] weariness of her voice. "I'm so busy being sorry for myself that I don't deserve to have a friend in the world. Let's lay the table."

There was a note of explosive [illegible] in her suggestion, and I acted upon it. We both got tremendously busy at once, pulling out drawers and gathering up silver and linens, unwrapping parcels, selecting china and glassware, slicing bread, chopping ice, arranging the food on platters and trays. I flung myself into the task and said no word that didn't have to do with such matters as the whereabouts of the ice pick or the kind of plates Betty wanted used.

When at last everything was in order and the coffee set back on the stove to keep hot, we went into the dining room and fell upon our repast with the appetite our labors had earned. All through the little supper our talk remained on the surface of things, but part of my mind was wrestling with the situation. I felt sure that Betty also was thinking of things deeper than she discussed. At last she pushed back her empty coffee cup, folded her arms in front of her on the table and looked me squarely in the eyes.

"Have you decided what to do about me?" she asked.

"I've decided to carry out my plan of offering you a job," I replied, parrying her question with an implied one of my own.

"I need to go to work, don't I?" asked Betty simply. "Our affairs are badly involved. We haven't much ready cash, have we?"

Ignoring that pathetic and unconscious "we," I replied, with no attempt to run away from facts.

"Your affairs are involved, Jim's. I don't know how much you've guessed. I don't know how much Jeanne has told you, but I'm working, and making a go of it. Jim's down in Mexico trying to save his fortune and that of the friends who invested through him. It broke his heart to think that if he failed you folks would go with him."

"He'd hate it more than ever now I'm alone," commented Betty almost idly.

"Yes," I agreed. "It's all complicated. We'll go into it later. But right this minute I've a going concern and have only one partner. I need another. You could learn the business in next to no time. It would be a favor to me, and it would put you beyond any present need."

"And when Jim comes back he won't have me on his mind—he won't feel that I'm a pensioner on his bounty," commented Betty shrewdly.

"It won't come to that. Jim will pull through," I replied.

"Better if he hadn't any extra burdens," said Betty, quietly. "But if you've a going business, you're not a burden[illegible]"

"No; I am an asset," I smiled.

"And you've room for me?"

"Room and the need," I said.

"Virginia wouldn't particularly approve, would she?" Betty asked quickly.

"Probably not." I confessed. "She hated to see me go into trade." She'll loathe seeing me drag you in"

"That won't matter" Betty replied with amazing conciseness. "I know her clearly to understand that if I couldn't shake off my dust and the terrible dependance that's chaining me and making a parasite of me—I'd go to pieces

"I couldn't stay there and graft on her and Pat. I forced her to see it. She gave in to my coming home. She saw the wisdom of our living together. It all ties up perfectly. There isn't a loose thread I go into business with you. You come to live with me. I'm sure it's right—"

"It wouldn't be right, if you'd live with Vb [illegible]." I began

Dotty Sees a Strange Sight

ONE day as Dotty was out walking she heard a peculiar sound, and stopped to see what it was.

"Oh, dear, if I were only back home now I'd call Squeedee," Dotty said. "He'd know just what it was. But, my goodness! I can't expect him to follow me clear to South America. He doesn't know where I am! How could he?" Dotty laughed merrily. "Silly me!"

"Who's a silly?" asked a happy voice, and Squeedee, himself, slid down the limb of the tree above Dotty's head and touched her on the shoulder. "Who said I didn't know where to find you?" he laughed.

Squeedee craned his little neck, then started to chuckle.

"Well if it's a crowd of my friends!" And before Dotty could ask who they were Squeedee caught her by the hand and away they ran toward the queer, humming noise.

When they turned the bend in the road a strange sight met Dotty's eyes. There on the ground lay a crowd of beautiful white and brown animals

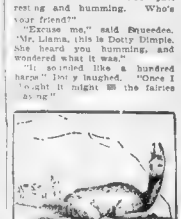
SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR BACK

Wyeth's Save and Sulphur Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your crown. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its charm to a hundred fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either mix the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, which is merely the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of people recommend this modern preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, so that no one can possibly tell as it does so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it and draw it through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it has a natural color restored and it becomes thick, glossy and youthful, and you appear years younger.



"Having a Concert!"

He was rather a pretty animal with a long, fine white fur. He was about four and a half feet tall. He stood with his large head with its large ears seemed almost out of place on so tall an animal. His feet were very small and narrow and his body, with its long, thick neck, looked very strong. When he lost her what heavy weights he could carry on his back.

"Hello, there!" Squeedee cried, shaking his hand to the one that seemed to be the leader. "What's up? Having a concert?"

"Concert, nothing!" replied the leader, getting up and coming to Squeedee's side. "We're just resting and humming. Who's your friend?"

"Excuse me," said Squeedee. "Mr. Llama, this is Dotty Dimple. She heard you humming, and wondered what it was."

"It sounded like a hundred harps!" Dotty laughed. "Once I thought it might be the fairies singing."

Just yesterday I carried a sack that weighed 175 pounds! He exclaimed. "You would think it to look at me, would you?"

"And you are to do it!" asked Dotty. "I wouldn't help for a more than my head full load."

"Of course I do!" he replied. "We all like to do the things that we're best suited for. It's very kind to us in return. He used to have camels to carry his loads across country, but he sold them and we do it now. It's funny to see one of us unloaded. We just lie down and refuse to move. Would think he'd beat us—but he doesn't. He just lightens the load. I'll say he's a good fellow. But come on, boys, we can't lose!"

Nodding [illegible] Mr. Llama started away, followed by the crowd followed by Dotty watched them out of sight. When she turned around Squeedee had disappeared.

MAKE MONEY FOR HOME

—By Loretto C. Lynch—

An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Appertaining to Household Management.

"AS another year begins," says an interesting letter "I do want to do something about our financial problem. There are my husband, myself and two children of school age. My husband does the very best he can, yet we are always on the ragged end financially. It taxes all he can make to cover our simplest needs and we never seem to have any money for emergencies or for the little pleasures so dear to the average human

"For instance, it is almost tragic to us financially, if some relative say us a visit for a day or two for it means extra food to be purchased and so on

"Now, as the children are growing older, I realize their needs will increase and so I am writing to see if you may have some suggestion to take us off the financially bad precipice upon which we always seem to be."

Of course, the only answer seems to be to increase your income. And this is really easier to do than to worry along day in and day out. One of the simplest ways of increasing the income for the woman in the home, is by the renting out of a room. If your home is a small one, give up your own bedroom and sleep in the living room on a folding bed, until such time as you can look at the rent from that room neatly written in a savings bank book. If you get but five dollars a week from the room and most rooms rent for more than this—at the end of the year you will have a couple of hundred dollars at least, and quite a very comforting in emergencies.

If this is impractical, perhaps you can do the laundry, and a small "ad" in the newspaper will quickly bring you your first trade. A woman personally known to me charges thirty cents to launder all articles for business girls, and some days she does as many as twenty.

TRAINING OF CHILDREN

—By W. A. McKeever—

Well Known Lecturer and Author and National Authority on Juvenile Problems

FOUR city mothers, each having a two-year-old child have arranged to have the four little ones trained together daily for a brief afternoon period. An intelligent nursery teacher has been employed for the handling of the problem.

In order to give each child the advantage of the changing environment, the baby school is made a circuit affair, each of the four households in its turn becoming the patron. The four children are all going along happily and are learning many lessons that will remain with them for life.

The first fundamental idea involved in the nursery school for babies is that people of all ages learn most naturally and most rapidly from those of their own class and kind.

The second fundamental idea involved in the group plan of baby education is that a child will not develop a full normal personality unless it be privileged to play considerably with other little ones.

Nature has given womankind a thirty-year period of potential motherhood. And during that time she could theoretically bring as many children into the world

When nature made the plan of prolific motherhood she apparently decided that the babies should be brought up in flocks and should be one another's teachers. Under ideal conditions the parent is the director and overseer of the child's education, but the real teacher is another child

The only child becomes up chiefly alone with his parents, no matter how intelligent they may be, cannot become thoroughly well balanced and normal in his adult behavior, and he is likely to become morbid or eccentric.

The four mothers, with their plan of group training of their little children, are setting a pattern which I commend heartily to parents everywhere.

VENUS AND THE MOON

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

"Please inform me when and where the phenomenon of January 13—occultation of Venus by the moon—will be repeated—F. H., Somerville, Mass."

THERE will be an occultation of Venus by the moon on May 4, but it will not be visible in North America or in Europe, but only in the eastern part of the southern hemisphere, and nowhere above latitude 22 degrees south

For an occultation to be visible from any point on the earth it is necessary, first, that at the moment of the occultation both the moon and the planet or star occulted shall be above the horizon of the place of observation, second, that the sun shall not simultaneously be above the horizon (except that very bright stars or plants may be seen with telescopes by daylight); and third, that as viewed from the point of observation the moon shall not appear so far north or so far south of the star or planet as to pass above or below without hiding it

The moon is so near that its apparent position in the sky may be shifted as much as fifty seven minutes of arc, or almost two of the moon's diameter, by change of the observer's position on the earth. This fact sufficed to show why an occultation seen from one latitude may be simply a close approach as seen from another

With regard to the occultation of Venus, it is an indication both of the comparative rarity of such an occurrence, and the universal popular interest in unexpected sights in the sky, that I have a considerable number of letters received from persons who did not know, notwithstanding all the advance "publicity" it had received, that such an event was to occur, but who, nevertheless, happened to see it, and were much surprised and puzzled by the sight

One writes that "it was the prettiest sight I have ever seen," and wonders whether it was a dark star that received its light from the illuminated part of the moon, and when it passed out of range of the moonlight disappeared."

The fact was that Venus disappeared behind the bright part of the moon and reappeared from behind the dark part, but both disappearance and the reappearance were near the northern or upper end of the crescent,

TAKE SALTS IF RHEUMATISM IS BOTHERING YOU

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Jad Salts to Get Rid of Toxic Acid

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat no sweets for awhile, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and above all, drink lots of pure water

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid or body waste matter, and is often generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood, but the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and all the poisonous toxic acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settles in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste and stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

Spadoni, the violinist, is reminded by his mother that he can fight for France

THE ACTION TO DATE

Prince Michael Fedor, a Russian of fabulous wealth, is at Monte Carlo while the great war is on. With him is his friend, Attilio Castro, and other acquaintances. The prince, on returning to Villa Sirena, finds everything changed owing to the war. He announces, to the amazement of his hearers, that he is ruined. Castro smilingly remarks that he would be content with one-tenth of the remains. The Prince proposes that Castro and a few of their friends live together with the proviso that no women shall enter their lives. They will be known as "The Enemies of Women." Castro tells the Prince he has seen the Duchess de Dolilie. The Prince says he will not receive her. The story reverts to the marriage of the Prince's father and mother and the son's early training.

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and Other Novels of World Renown.

AN instinctive rivalry frequently embittered the relations of the two multimillionairesses. The Princess was sure that her wealth was far greater. When Dona Mercedes talked about Mexican silver, she mentioned Russian platinum. "What is silver worth compared to Platinum?" And in order to completely floor her opponent, she would bring out her family history.

Beginning with the remote Cossack ancestor, who almost became the legitimate husband of Catherine the Great, she paraded generals, marshals of the Emperor's household, betmans followed by their retinue of half-savage horsemen, princes and ambassadors.

Dona Mercedes, inwardly annoyed by so much greatness, nevertheless smiled a sweet, enigmatic smile, as though saying to herself: "That is all very far away and perhaps a lie."

Immediately she began talking in her rapid, whimsical French, which she had never been able to free from numerous Spanish locutions which still clung tenaciously.

"Mamma was an intimate friend of Eugenie . . . Don't you know who Eugenie is? The Empress, the wife of Napoleon III. When Mme. Barries — that was my mother—was announced at the Tuileries, the doors were opened wide. Papa was one of the men who made Maximilian Emperor."

But there was between these two declining beauties, who had seen themselves the centers of attraction and adoration in former years, a common bond which moved them like far-off music, like the cherished longing of youth; the daughter of Dona Mercedes, the vivacious Alicia Macdonald.

Everything Hers.

She possessed everything. Besides her immense wealth, she had the advantage of birth, enabling her to elevate any man whatsoever to her own level, no matter how far beneath he might be. Alicia had one ambition: to unite her fortune to a great title of the old aristocracy in order to be presented at court.

Since her fifteenth year this desire had been a fixed, calculating design, dissimulated under apparent recklessness. From her childhood Dona Mercedes had told her of legendary marriages, of princes who in former times used to marry shepherdesses, but were in search nowadays of millionaires' daughters.

Michael Fedora felt somewhat embarrassed at meeting in his palace this girl, who looked at him so boldly, with a dominating, gave her an exotic charm. The rest of her body revealed a modern physical education. Her limbs were firm and agile from continuous exercise and play.

Dona Mercedes seemed to urge the two children toward each other from the very first meeting.

"Don't stand on formality," she said in a motherly way. "You are cousins."

Although Michael didn't quite succeed in making out their relationship, he endeavored to treat the young girl in a friendly manner, while the creole smiled as she already pictured Alicia with the coronet of a princess, bowing before the Czar.

"Too much of a young lady," the Prince told the Colonel afterward. "I like the others better."

Don Marcos, having been his companion in wide and joyous travels, knew whom the boy meant by "the others," for he had begun very young to nibble at the grapes of life.

On other occasions it irritated Michael that Alicia should seem so much like "the others," with her unabashed bearing like that of a foolish virgin.

"She's worse than a boy. If you only knew, Colonel, the things she says to me!"

As for Alicia, she, too, showed her displeasure. She was accustomed to seeing other men make an effort to be gracious and show her flattering attention, while Michael manifested a haughty character, like her own, arguing with her, and even daring to contradict her.

A Haughty Character.

Occasionally they went out together for a gallop in the Bois de Boulogne, accompanied by Toledo. One morning, coming to a crossroad in the Bois, Alicia, without consulting her companion, started her horse for the avenue that seemed to her preferable.

"No, this way," Michael called in a commanding voice.

"I don't like this; this is the way!" she answered aggressively.

The Prince made an effort to cut her off by crossing ahead of her, and she spurred her horse against Michael's with a shock that brought the two animals to their knees. The Colonel, who was behind them, caught an exchange of angry glances and harsh words. Alicia raised her whip and struck the Prince across the shoulders.

"You do that to me!"

The face of this scion of the old Colonel Lobimoff underwent a rapid series of expressions, finally taking on aspect of extreme ugliness and savagery. His nostrils seemed to dilate even more than usual. He raised his whip and struck, but Toledo had put his horse between the two, receiving the tip of the lash on his cheek, which began to bleed. The sight of the blood and the thought that the blow was intended for her maddened the young woman with rage.

More Insults

"Brutal Savage! . . . Russian!"

This seemed too mild, and she stopped a moment, to think up a greater insult. Her childhood memories helped her; the legends she had heard from the half-breeds back in her own land inspired her with a new affront, as if Michael Fedor were Fernan Cortes.

"Spaniard! . . . Murderer of Indians!"

And fearing a new lashing after that supreme insult, she fled at a made pace without stopping until she reached the Arch of Triumph.

After this incident Dona Mercedes gave up all hope of her daughter's becoming a Lubimoff.

Prince Michael returned to Russia and remained there until he was twenty-four. His military studies were passed brilliantly, according to Toledo, and he soon succeeded in distinguishing himself among the most famous cavalry officers of the Guard. He took prizes in exhibitions of seamanship. With his reverse he could clip coins held up at fifty paces by his comrades. He wielded the saber with a skill that General Saldana or this Cossack ancestor would have admired.

Military Practice.

Every morning in the courtyard of his Petersburg palace he found awaiting him a life-sized dummy made of the firm sticky clay used by sculptors. He would stay for half an hour in front of it, going through his exercises.

It is not enough to be able to strike one's enemy; the important thing was to strike well, with the greatest possible depth and force.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Elsa Allen Says:

Today Is Lucky If You Are ADVENTUROUS

IF you were born this day you are never quite what you give the impression of being. You are extremely hard to know, and your rarest delight will be in wearing a mask to friends and strangers alike.

This is a quality which will bring you both joy and sorrow, but never an uninteresting life. You will pretend that you are seriously interested in weighty affairs of state and often discourse on them at great length, but your interest is quite superficial and of much less importance to you than your effect on your audience. You will argue on both sides of a question on the same day, and frequently to the same person, just to have your say.

Your nature is romantic and you are very apt to have several love affairs under way at the same time.

You are practically incapable of sustained effort. However, this is not altogether a vice, as what success you will have in business or in love will be as the result of a sudden change and in spite of all sound advice on the part of your friends.

Today is one of extremely good omen for all business of a productive nature, but one on which no changes should be made in private life.

The ensuing year for you will be unusually fortunate. You will receive inestimable help from your friends and a sum of money from an unexpected source, very probably by inheritance.

A child born on this day will have a tragic life unless care is taken to give it proper education. Any unusual talent should be thoroughly developed.

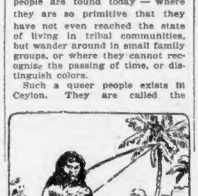
THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

WHERE HUMANS NEVER LAUGH

By Temple Manning

THERE are few places in the world where really primitive people are found today — where they are so primitive that they have not even reached the state of living in tribal communities, but wander around in small family groups, or where they cannot recognize the passing of time, or distinguish colors.

Such a queer people exists in Ceylon. They are called the



Three Veddas of Ceylon

"Veddas" or "hunters." During the Dutch occupation in the seventeenth century the Veddas wandered all over the island. But now they are confined to the southeastern district.

Here these aborigines are found, living in caves or forest trees. They know nothing of cooking. Their menu consists mainly of reptiles, which they kill with their rude weapons.

The traveler, on first seeing this interesting remnant of what might have been primitive man, is surprised at the almost lilliputian proportions of their bodies. For they are a dwarfish race, averaging barely five feet in height.

Their language—a horrible jumble—is a degraded form of Singalese, mixed with Sanskrit. For this reason exists the theory that they are Hindu outcasts who have deteriorated into the strange people they are today. A peculiar coincidence is that they call themselves "sons of kings."

In appearance they more closely resemble the Hindus than any other race, because of their features, coarse, straight, black hair and dark complexions.

This puzzling race has many extraordinary characteristics. But the most amazing to the westerner is that they never laugh. In fact, no Vedda has ever been known to laugh.

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

By Ann Adams

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

When a man friend who lives a long way from my home takes me out evenings would it be correct for me to suggest that he see me only to the train? It is not lonely where I live and so there would be no danger in my going home alone. A. B. C.

A FEW years ago it would have been impossible to make your suggestion in the spirit which is recognized in the social world today. Since you would come home alone if you had been to the theatre with a girl friend, it would be a nice courtesy to make your suggestion to the young man.

DO YOU LIKE THE SERIAL 'WHEN A GIRL MARRIES'?

Well, folks, what do you think about this?

In the mail today were the following letters, among many others, one for and one against continuing the serial. What do you think about it? Do you want to read any more about Anne, Jim, Phoebe, Neil, or not?

Let's have your vote.

Editor Boston American:

After reading the letter published in the Boston American of February 3, bringing up the question of "Should the serial of 'When a Girl Marries' be continued?" five women and myself want to say a few words. Couldn't this "Ardent Reader" read something else that doesn't give him such dangerous things as high blood pressure? We should think that he would get skittish about reading anything so dangerous. All we have to say is why stop others' pleasure in reading "When a Girl Marries" just because someone hasn't enough sense to stop reading something he does not like. Surely with all the interesting news published every day in the Boston American those few who think themselves "Ardent Readers" can find something else to read that doesn't nauseate them.

E. J. D., M. D., F. M., L. M., M. N., F. R.

Editor Boston American:

Yes! Please, for the love of God and the patrons of this paper, cut out "When a Girl Marries." I've heard lunatics rave, but never anything like that. I've wanted for months to ask you to cease inflicting any more of it on the public. I've enjoyed many of the other stories, but words fail to express my contempt for that one. As yet the writer has failed to arrive at a single point in the story, simply swings around in circles and gets nowhere.

Did you ever know of a writer to love herself as "Anne" does? Poor Jim! If I were he I'd stay away. Please give us something worth while.

LAND O' DREAMS

NEW SERIES BY NOTED PSYCHO-ANALYST

By Hereward Carrington, Ph. D.

Writer of Wide Repute and Author of Books on Psycho-Analysis.

MANY theories have been advanced in the past to account for dreams, from the views entertained by savages to the most modern "psychological" views. Believers in psychical and occult phenomena have, naturally, theories of their own to account for dreams—particularly vivid and striking dreams, which seem in some way to correspond with reality. We must see what these are.

It is held to be a truism in psychology that we cannot dream anything which we have not in some way experienced. Dreams are fabricated in the deeps of the subconscious mind, and whatever is in the subconscious must have got into it—say the psychologists—through the five senses. Dreams are compounds, made up of past mental and physical experiences.

Of course, in one sense, everyone knows this to be untrue. We dream of being in places we have never seen, of people we have never met, or even of being upon the moon or some distant star. We have never experienced that! But the reply of the orthodox psychologist is that these dreams represent the mere extension, by the imagination, of ideas, images, etc., which are familiar to us in daily life. They are variations of these.

But there are many dreams which are certainly hard to account for on any ordinary theory, and these dreams psycho-analysts, for instance, cannot explain! These are the so-called "super-normal" dreams, examples of which have already been given in this series. The only resort of materialistic science is to deny that they exist. An ostrich philosophy, indeed!

Granting that they do exist, at times, what is their explanation? Occult science has advanced a theory that these dreams which is profoundly interesting.

It is contended, to begin with, that whenever we lose consciousness for any reason—whenever we faint, go to sleep, take an anaesthetic, etc.—the living mind or consciousness, leaves the physical body. That is what unconsciousness is.

In addition to the physical body, we are said to possess another, finer or more subtle body—an "astral" body—which corresponds in appearance to the physical body, but is composed of more subtle and finer matter. This body is the vehicle of the mind. It acts as a sort of connecting link between mind and body. It is the body of sensation and emotion, and it is with this body that we feel. That is why the dead do not feel any pain, although the nervous system is still intact. The astral or life body has departed from it, carrying with it the soul of man. And that is why we do not feel any pain while under the influence of an anaesthetic, and the physical body can be cut up without sensation on our part. It is because the body of feeling has been removed completely from the physical body, and only connected with it by the finest of "threads," easily broken.

Now, in sleep, this body also leaves the physical body, but the connections are deeper and stronger—hence our ability to respond to bodily sensations to some extent during sleep. But the "astral" body is "out" of the physical body, hovering above it, subject to thought streams and impressions from other minds, as well as fabricating thoughts of its own. Hence the confused jumble of dreams, which we find it hard to "bring back" into the physical brain, when we awaken.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"An honest man's word is as good as his bond."

Wrote Cervantes in "Don Quixote," in the 16th century, and the saying still holds good.

"Carthage must be destroyed."

In a fiery speech in the Roman Senate Cato showed the threat of Carthage to Rome, and ended by demanding that Carthage be destroyed.

"Homer sometimes nods."

Nobody is perfect, affirms the poet Horace in his poem on the "Art of Poetry."

"Nothing is so expensive as glory."

Sydney Smith (1765-1845) wrote the above in "Memoir." Many have learned from experience the truth of his saying.

ANECDOTES OF FAMOUS

A first-rate story is told by Sir Philip Gibbs, the famous newspaper correspondent. It was during his recent lecture tour, and one night the chairman "introduced" him to the audience with these words:

All of you here, men and women, have read his well-known book with the remarkable title—by—with the remarkable and familiar title—er—ladies and gentlemen, I have great pleasure to introduce you to our famous guest, or—er—distinguished guest" (another pause, and the chairman looked at the lecturer, who murmured, "Sir Philip Gibbs.") The chairman then finished in triumph: "Sir Frederick Boggs!"

ON ITS ownership of over 1,500,000 shares of New Cornelia's 1,800,000 shares outstanding, Anaconda of Arizona takes about 70 per cent. of the new issue, or around $1,400,000.

UNITED States Smelting, Refining & Mining Co. net profits amounted to about $200,000, equivalent to about 16 cents a share on the 1,217 shares of common stock and a more pleasant picture than deficit of $246,000 reported in 1921.

ISLE ROYALE has outstanding 150,000 shares, the only capital liability, of which 25,000 shares, or 25 per cent., are owned by Calumet & Hecla.

CHILE Copper Co. in declaring initial dividend of 62½ cents called it a "distribution." It is believed the reason for such a designation was reluctance on part of Guggenheims to appear to establish dividend rate upon stock in view of their agreement to sell control to Anaconda.

MEETING of stockholders of Anaconda Copper Mining Co. called for approving details of financing necessary to enable Anaconda to acquire control is set for Feb. 26.

FISK Rubber Co., for 1922, did a gross business of about $45,000,000 or 12 per cent. more than 1921.

WIVES! HERE IS HOW TO MAKE HOMES HAPPY!

(By International News Service.)

New York, Feb. 8.—That behavior of wives also has something to do with home happiness is conceded by the Legal Aid Society, which recently issued a decalogue for husbands.

Out of the wisdom acquired in bringing about 4,000 conferences to secure domestic disarmament in a year the society issued ten rules for wives

These are the rules:

1—Don't be extravagant.

2—Keep your home clean. Nothing is more refreshing to the eyes of the tired, nerve-wracked worker than the sight of a well-tidied home.

3—Do not permit your person to become unattractive. A slovenly wife makes a tired husband.

4—Do not receive attentions from other men. Husbands often are jealous.

5—Do not resent reasonable discipline of children by their father. Mothers should not assume that all chastisement is cruel and that father is severe and unjustifiable.

6—Do not spend too much time with your mother. You may easily in such way spend too little time at home.

7—Do not accept advice from the neighbors. Think for yourself.

8—Do not disparage your husband.

9—Smile. Be attentive in little things.

10—Be tactful. Be feminine. Men, in the last analysis, are but overgrown children.

WHIST PARTY TO AID DISABLED VETERANS

In order that disabled World War veterans in government hospitals may continue to receive the comforts they have enjoyed since their return from France, the Willing Workers' League, the first welfare organization formed here for Day Blain war heroes, will conduct a whist and bridge at Gardener Hall, Washington square, Brookline, tomorrow afternoon.

The committee, headed by Mrs. William J. Scott, includes, Mrs. Lillian K. Lyons, Mrs. George Havens, Mrs. John H. Gillespie, Mrs. Edward McDestrick, Mrs. Abraham B. Gordon, Mrs. Alex Woodman, Mrs. Ida Potter, Mrs. Joseph Avery and Miss Estelle Adams.

BUTLER EMPLOYES HOLD BALL TONIGHT

Proceeds will go into the general fund of the association. Surprise features and specialties are promised. Officers of the association are: President, A. Saunders; vice-president, J. E. Shay; secretary, Miss A. B. O'Reilly; treasurer, Miss Maude A'Hearne.

If You Want Coal Telephone Brookline 0540

But Be Sure to Specify Whether You Want Buckwheat, Nut, Stove or Egg as Coal Administrator Phelan Has Four Varieties.

James J. Phelan, the public Coal Administrator, has four varieties of the finest anthracite at his handsome residence, No. 11 Chiswick road, Brookline. If you have no coal, telephone him. The number is Brookline 0540. Mr. Phelan also has some fine split hickory and other wood suitable for making a pleasant crackle and pungent odor in the old fireplace while anthracite provides the heat.

Mr. Phelan, as head of New England's Fuel Commission, accuses the Boston American with having wilfully and deliberately falsified the fuel situation.

He considers it an idle dream. He quotes statistics to show that the railroads have dumped more coal into New England this winter than any other winter.

He professes to believe that the Boston American's photographs showing 95,000 tons of anthracite shipped to New England, which now is stalled on the sidetracks on the Hudson river gateway of the Boston & Maine, while coal-laden trains of American anthracite whizz by for Canada, to be fictitious.

The Boston American today presents photographs and evidence showing that 200,000 tons of New England coal is tied up in the embargo-bound freight yards of the New Haven railroad. Mr. Phelan has anticipated us by stating that this is fictitious.

Everybody has coal, according to Mr. Phelan.

Reporters who got samples from his coal bins were told by coal dealers that Mr. Phelan has the finest grade of anthracite.

If you believe Mr. Phelan, call him up and give him the encouragement of your support.

If you don't believe Mr. Phelan, call him up and get some coal.

He may have been misled by reason of his business connections and by reason of the various bins in his own snug Brookline mansion to suspect that all New Englanders are in that same cozy condition.

If you have coal that won't burn, phone or write Mr. Phelan. It is his business, as head of the Fuel Commission, to look after the Commonwealth.

But be sure to specify what variety of anthracite you wish. It might embarrass him if you wanted nut anthracite, failed to specify, and got, instead, statistics.

New England Cannot Live By Bunk Alone

New England is a credulous community. It wants to believe. Its abiding faith is seen in the fact that in spite of Ponzi, in spite of Greene, in spite of the trust company failures this community has piled up a new record for savings that sets the pace for the world.

There seems to be a disposition of public officials and semi-public institutions to prey upon this disposition of kindly New Englanders to believe.

The public asks for service and the railroads give statistics. The public asks for coal and the Fuel Administrator furnishes statistics.

The railroads say conditions are better than they were a year ago. Yet on their books is written the records of embargoes—embargoes against bituminous coal, embargoes against freight, embargoes tying up everything bound for New England except perishables and anthracite.

Still they DO NOT FURNISH THE ANTHRACITE.

The Public Utilities Commission had a hearing yesterday to make inquiry into the disgusting passenger service, which has been exposed by the Boston American. Railroad presidents had been summoned. They sent understudies, who bubbled with alibis.

They might have inquired into the coal situation. The door for discussion was opened by Bardo of the New Haven. Bardo said the American's pictures of coal laden cars standing on sidings were not borne out by the records.

Blame for late passenger trains was placed on strikers, snow, temperature, coal, sulphur in the ashes, clogged grates —everything but the railroad companies and their shoddy equipment.

Coal was not discussed. The freight embargo was not discussed. As the late editions of the Boston American, exposing the embargoes had not yet appeared, that subject may have not been known to the commission.

But all the king's horses and all the king's men cannot dispel the knowledge that rotten railroads are responsible for the rotten condition of New England business.

It is simple to explain what is not responsible for an impossible, incredible, preposterous situation that would be comic if it did not encompass so much tragedy.

When the final chapter is written it will be called The Conspiracy. Nothing short of a conspiracy can be responsible.

Sweet Charity

It's Best While You Live

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

"Left Much to Charity." You read it every day, and you can almost imagine the corpse of the charitable one glowing with self-approval.

What does "Left Much to Charity" mean? It means quite often that an individual, selfish all through life, buys a little self-advertising at the last moment, at the expense of his relations, and hopes at the same time to buy a front seat above. There is truth in the old Talmudic statement: "What you give is gold, in health; silver, in sickness; lead, after death."

There is no real charity except the charity of the poor which involves self-denial. The rich charity is merely buying a kind of nice comfortable mental hot-water bag.

It is fortunate, however, that the dying believe they can buy future bliss and earthly advertising. That helps to distribute money usefully.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

POLITENESS

By Bruno Lessing

JUST sitting at a window overlooking a busy street. The traffic policeman has disappeared from his post. Automobiles are whizzing by in every direction. Each chauffeur seems to know that the policeman is absent and all regard for the rules of the road is thrown to the winds.

Each chauffeur seems in a hurry to pass that particular corner. When the car in front of him slows down he toots his horn with exasperation. When he sees a car about to cross his path he steps on the gas and tries to get ahead of it. The other driver does the same. The result is that they both come to a standstill, six inches apart and each abuses the other.

Now the traffic policeman returns and the stream of cars passes on in orderly fashion.

And it dawned upon me that one of the greatest obstructions of traffic and one of the greatest causes of accidents is nothing else that a mere lack of ordinary politeness. The drivers seem to have not the slightest regard for one another's feelings or desires or intentions.

Politeness pays. If a truck driver were to pull up his lumbering Juggernaut and motion to a Tin Lizzie to pass on ahead of him, the driver of the Tin Lizzie would probably be flabbergasted at first. But the example would have an effect upon him. And, after a while, he would become polite, too.

Chinese Against Motor Hearse

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—China has been putting up with all kinds of Occidental progress. There was only a mild protest when the great wall surrounding Canton was torn down to make a motor highway. But it has risen up on its hind legs to tell the world that it will not be hurried to the grave in motor hearses.

This is reported by Trade Commissioner Irvine to the Department of Commerce in a statement describing automotive conditions made public today. All attempts to introduce the American hearse which whizzes its passengers to the cemetery at high speed have failed miserably.

Why B. & M. Trains Are Late

Editor Boston American:

It might be of interest to you to know that Mr. W. S. Trowbridge, comptroller of the Boston & Maine R. R., has solved the problem of why B. & M. trains are late. About eighty per cent. of the clerks in Mr. Trowbridge's department use the B. & M. to travel to and from home. A ruling has been issued by Mr. Trowbridge that all clerks arriving late at the office on account of late trains shall make up this time minute for minute, as it is considered the clerk's fault. A new idea: Clerks are responsible for late trains.

The clerks last Saturday afternoon had to make up the time lost for the month of January, account of late trains. Just to give you a little idea of B. & M. service: Train No. 2,600 from Essex, Mass., a 28-mile run, was 11 hours and 43 minutes late for the month. Train No. 116 from Haverhill, due in Boston at 8.01 a. m., arrived so late that clerks using this train and who are due at the office at 8.15, were 4 hours and 52 minutes late. The comptroller's office is one minute walk from the train. I could give you many more examples of B. & M. "efficiency."

If the B. & M. officials would spend a little more time trying to improve their service, instead of making such foolish discoveries then there would not be 1,350 cars of coal lying at Mechanicsville.

Look at their equipment. The engines, as they rattle and groan along, shower the roadbed with bolts, nuts and various parts and finally give a dying gasp and traffic is held up for an hour. On February 1, train No. 2,404 from Stoneham, broke a connecting rod and tied up the Southern Division, inward bound, for one hour during the morning rush. The same morning a train arriving at Woburn about 11 o'clock blew a cylinder head and passengers were forced to take trolley cars to Boston.

Women Disliked His Face

LONDON, Neb., Feb. 8.—If you don't like his face fire him!

Mrs. W. T. Graham, vice-president of the Nebraska W. C. T. U., doesn't like the face of U. S. Rohrer, Federal prohibition director for this district. She said so right out in meeting. Then the W. C. T. U. passed a resolution asking Governor Charles W. Bryan to "fire" his new State Sheriff, Tom Carroll.

No objection was set forth by the women to Carroll's face. But the new sheriff has been one of Rohrer's best little "rum hounds."

Rohrer says he isn't offended by the observations of Mrs. Graham.

"I have realized for some time," he said, "that I am no Apollo. In fact, I don't like my own face. But I have put up with it in close association much longer than has Mrs. Graham, and I'm still fairly robust."

"If anyone has a handsome, young face to swap I'm open to proposals."

GENERAL WRANGLE STILL COMMANDS IN EUROPE

By Herbert Kaufman

GENERAL WRANGLE still commands European news.

The British Cabinet won't budge from its last Lausanne proposition. Poincare, without explaining his recent lone hand gesture, suddenly is again for a united allied front.

Turkey drops the judicial safeguard bone, but hasn't quite relinquished contention. Another conference is on. Nobody seems to want that war in the East.

Strikes and transportation sabotage have made a sad mess of continental train service.

France tightens her starvation blockade, while Ambassador Jusserand reminds us that his country's "peaceful occupation" is far less drastic than Germany's war treatment of French territory. Cuno has only to say that he's wrong, and all will be forgotten. That is if reparations, et cetera, are paid to date.

At Rome, Mussolini is warring on his old Communist friends.

And the Lithuanians, ordered to evacuate Memel within a week, impudently tell the League of Nations to chase itself.

Rainbows, Olive Branches and a Miracle

The Mikado's new envoy, interviewed at Honolulu, has nothing to say on these parlous subjects.

He speaks instead of Pacific rainbows and olive branches and abiding understandings.

The redrafted immigration bill purposing further curtailment of Asiatic quotas, does not seem to alter the opinion that his government will make no additional protests against racial discrimination.

Prince Fushima, who died yesterday, saw mariners executed for sailing beyond coastal waters. In those days Japan's main concern was the restriction of emigration. Fushima saw his father ride in a palanquin. He saw his own sons ride in the clouds.

In sixty odd years he witnessed a miracle, to which the whole universe may well turn for inspiration. He beheld a nation without tools or wealth, without contacts or machinery, rise from isolated medievalism to take equal rank with the first powers of the earth.

Folks who can't understand how we may, within present lifetimes, repair and replace the losses of the last war, will find the answer in Japan: Education—determination—work!

$5,000,000,000 for New Building

Immediate building projects estimated at $5,000,000,000 tell how much work is going forward in the United States.

The Illinois Central Railroad will make $45,000,000 of improvements in 1923.

President Gary finds more steel orders than existing plants can possibly handle, and agrees with Charles M. Schwab that the industry's limits are not even in sight.

The General Electric Company with facilities indefinitely enlarged by war activities and practically no overseas markets to absorb increased capacity still manages well enough to have over a million dollars available for bonus distribution.

The shoe business, which prophets predicted would languish without usual foreign orders, also finds that prosperity is living at home these days. The Newcomb-Endicott Company made enough sales in the last few months to put about two hundred and fifty dollars extra in every pay envelope.

He Specialized in Widows and Orphans

Austin E. Montgomery, just arrested in San Francisco, sold three million dollars worth of worthless securities through the Community Finance Corporation.

He watched the Surrogate courts for news of wills and kept track of damage suit verdicts, specializing in widows, orphans and cripples.

French scientists, who have been asking the State to let them experiment on condemned felons, would find communities more inclined to surrender certain sorts of thieves to their serums.

Murder is usually committed on impulse.

The circumstances that make a man a killer seldom recur. Only 3 per cent. of paroled "lifers," according to Warden Lawes, ever return to Sing Sing.

But swindling represents deliberate calculation. Men do not prey upon the weak and unwary by accident. Hyena finance deserves more than penitentiary sentences. If a few of these sneaks were delivered to inoculation the rest would soon be vicariously cured of the fever for other peoples' money.

Custom officials have seized five hundred cases of whiskey, bearing counterfeited labels of a famous distillery.

The bottles were filled with wood alcohol.

Men who make and sell that sort of stuff should be forced to drink it. Jail is also too good for bootlegging Borgias.

"Love That Passeth Understanding"

Supreme courage did not pass with the human torches of the coliseum. Or when Savaranola perished. Or as Huss mounted the faggots. The girl Joan and Winkleried live in every time and place.

You'll find more dauntless deeds in the news than history celebrates.

Shrines and tablets have not sanctified all the glory of unselfishness.

Mrs. Edward Wright of Cohoes poured kerosene in the kitchen stove. The flames leaped to her clothes. Burning alive, her one thought was the future of her babies.

"Don't mind me, Ed," she cried. "Take care of the children and bring them up right." Then went to the hospital singing hymns all the way.

All martyrdom isn't yet marked by monuments.
